BRITAIN DEMANDS AFRICA PEACE!

Italy Prepares For Big Celebration

ROME, May 5—The Italian government today officially confirmed the entry of Italian troops into Addis Ababa. Premier Mussolini immediately proclaimed mobilization of the entire Italian people to hear the news of the victory late today. News of the Italian entry into the ancient capital of Ethiopia swept like wildfire. The population was galvanized into action. Thousands rushed to their appointed sections in answer to Il Duce's order for an "Adunata" or mass mobilization. Thunderous cries of "Vive Il Re!" re-echoed through the streets of Rome and its big squares.

London Urges Negotiations To End Strife

ADDIS ABABA, May 5.—Rome's victorious troops raised the banner of Fascism over this pillaged capital today.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The state department was notified today that the United States legation in Addis Ababa had been reoccupied by its own officials and that all of its contents were undamaged.

LONDON, May 5.—Havas News Agency says that it was authoritatively learned in London today that the British government is requesting the Italian government that peace negotiations to end the East Africa war begin immediately.

The war in Ethiopia and the future of the League of Nations provided prime topics in British editorial comment today.

"If history is able to find any justification for Italy's destruction of Abyssinian power, its judgment will have to be based on the development of the resources of the country and raising the status of its people," the Daily Telegraph declared.

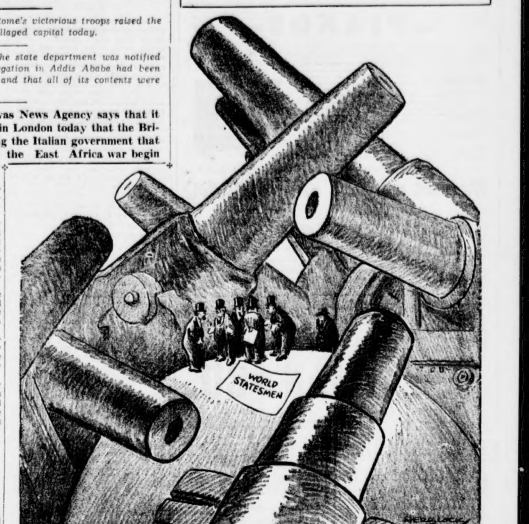

The News-Chronicle said: "If the British and French democracies will co-operate in putting collective security really first, the future can still be full of hope."

The Daily Herald proposed reform of the League of Nations by formation of "a European security pact based on reciprocal military guarantees."

"So far as it is possible to gather here, the British government does not have any views of any kind on the situation created by the Abyssinian tragedy. There appears to be no official policy at all."

Where Do We Go From Here, Boys—Where Do We Go From Here?

ROME, May 5.—Premier Mussolini declared tonight, "The war is over and Ethiopia is Italian."

ADDIS ABABA DOOMED

Natives Menace Legations

ADDIS ABABA, May 5.—Italian troops entered Addis Ababa shortly after 4 p.m., local time, today. A motorized force of soldiers drove past the British Legation and continued toward the heart of the capital.

First notification to the outside world of the entry into the capital was dispatched to London by Sir Sidney Barton, British minister to Addis Ababa.

The entry of the troops climaxed an arduous campaign which began October 10 with a series of sensational advances, hung in the balance for many weeks, and gained decisive momentum in a recent series of smashing battles.

Addis Ababa itself had been in the throes of rioting by natives who had been marauding through the streets of the capital since Emperor Haile Selassie fled the country.

Foreigners hoped the Italians would be able to restore order at once.

LONDON, May 5.—Sir Sidney Barton, British minister to Ethiopia, reported to the foreign office today that a large force of Italian troops in motor trucks entered Addis Ababa this afternoon.

Arrival of the Italians, who had fought their way up from the Desaye over mountain roads had been expected for the last two days.

MUSSOLINI NEAR GOAL

Where Italians Crushed Foe

Less than seven months after Italy's legions began their invasion of Ethiopia, Emperor Haile Selassie's black warriors have been cut down and driven back by Mussolini's blackshirts, native Askaris, and bomb-laden planes, until Italy's grip closes on Ethiopia's capital, Addis Ababa, bringing complete victory near. This map shows important dates and extent of the Italian advances as Mussolini insists that peace shall be made only on his own terms. Arrows indicate the path of Italy's attacks; the shaded area, the territory occupied.

ADDIS ABABA, May 5.—A British patrol was sent out from the Legation today to repel an attack by marauding native rioters on the Belgian Legation.

The British patrol went into action with machine guns. A company of Sikhs were sent out from the Legation to the rescue of the beleaguered Belgians.

A group of armed Ethiopians streamed out of the capital towards the north, declaring they were going to resist entry by the advancing Italian army.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Cornelius Van H. Engert, the minister, and the little band who had stayed to defend the United States Legation in Addis Ababa, were safely evacuated today.

Word the defenders had left the building, which for four days had been menaced by Ethiopian bandits bent on loot and murder was flashed here by way of London. No details were available beyond the report that "U. S. legation safely evacuated."

It was assumed Minister Engert, his wife and the other occupants of the pooled fortified legation had been taken to the stout British

COMPENSATION COMMISSIONER IS DISMISSED

Walter F. McNeill Out Following Amendment To Act

Commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Board since its inception in 1918; member of the commission that originally probed the desirability of establishing the board, and a member of the group that drafted the original Act, Walter F. McNeill on Monday submitted his resignation as a commissioner to Premier William Aberhart, effective as from June 1 next.

Mr. McNeill's resignation followed a conversation with the premier, in which the premier said it was the desire of the government to implement an amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Act passed at the recent session of the legislature, whereby provision is made for the board functioning as a one-man organization.

Mr. McNeill agreed in view of the fact that the legislature had passed the amendment and submitted his resignation on Saturday.

ONE MAN BOARD

The Board will now function under the chairmanship of Dr. Victor W. Wright who succeeded Alex Ross as chairman, shortly after the present government took office.

Prior to joining the Board, Mr. McNeill was a coal operator in the Canmore district.

The main purpose of the amending bill to the Workmen's Compensation Act passed at the last session, was to provide for reduction of the Board from three to one.

When the Board was originally established in 1918, a commission of three investigated the subject

Magill Demands Drink Of Water In Mine Trap Then Falls Back Dead

In yesterday's chapter of his personal story of the Moose River mine entombment, Dr. D. E. Robertson told how he and his companions, heartened by the faint sounds of blasting overhead, built a small fire to warm themselves in the hope that the smoke, seeping through to the surface, would tell the outside world they were still alive, despite their growing personal discomfort.

By DR. D. E. ROBERTSON

HALIFAX, May 5.—The blasting continued. We could hear automatic hammers or drills running and they sounded like machine guns in the far distance. About the third night they seemed to be pointing right in our direction. And for 12 hours there was steady drilling, and after there were about 16 to 30 shots fired, some rocks were dislodged and fell down the shaft.

We took this as a good sign and I think that it was at about this stage that we began to realize that a serious endeavor was being made on the surface and that there was a chance of our being rescued.

Believing this, the matter of time was not of first importance, so long as it was within ten days or so. We thought that we had kept time properly, that we had

George W. Hensley, evangelist, head of the group to which Weaver belonged, told the coroner's jury "probably 100" persons had been bitten during his "faith demonstrations" but that Weaver was the first to die.

LEGISLATURE'S GOLD DOME TO TAKE FIRST DIP

Famous Landmark Hasn't Been Washed For 20 Years

For generations humanity has rightly regarded Saturday night as its bath night. Whatever else might come or go, men and women have considered Saturday night bathing as their inviolable right—a right which has not been varied with the advent of modern speed. Other nights are just other nights, but the once a week Saturday bath is an institution that is as closely associated with the human race as eating. The question of semi-weekly or daily baths is seldom considered.

But those who have prided on washing away all their sins with weekly ablutions in the bath tub, prepared on the kitchen floor or more comfortably laid out upstairs, are shamed in comparison with the proud record of the legislative buildings dome.

SOME DROUGHT "

It is now having its first bath in 20 years, the first since it was painted, following construction of the main building, which was completed in 1912.

Under the personal direction and command of Percy Plowman, chief messenger, and in charge of the governmental janitorial services, a platoon of workers are busily engaged in scouring the dome—scouring it of a lustrous political ultra-ances as well as the accumulated grime of 20 long years.

The work is progressing favorably. The workers are plying their task suspended on a platform from the top, the platform being firmly secured with hemp ropes of sufficient strength and size to moor a battleship.

IT NEEDED IT

With soap, brushes and other cleansing materials the men are washing, scraping and getting the dirt off by any means they can.

And that the bath was greatly needed is apparent from the results. A glance at the finished parts of the work, as compared to the parts yet to be washed, discloses the difference between black and white. The dome, looking from the bottom of the building, did not appear to need washing. But once the operation started the need was more than apparent.

The workmen are making haste slowly. It's a ticklish job away up there, balancing on a wooden platform suspended from the top. But the job is being thoroughly done, for, who knows, it may be another 20 years before it is done again.

FISHING VESSEL RUNS AMUCK IN HARBOR WITH PILOT DEAD AT HELM

ASTORIA, Ore., May 5—His pilot dead, a gillnet fishing boat docked here Monday after the strangest trip ever recorded in this harbor.

The boat first was seen heading straight for a cannery dock. Suddenly it swerved across the path of two tugs hauling a log raft, barely missing one and slipping under the towline of the other.

Showward it sped but it hit a piling of a dock, swung around and drove back at the log raft, striking it.

Slipping off the log raft, the boat bore wildly down upon a trolling vessel, striking it a glancing blow and veered off up the Columbia river. Suddenly as though an unseen hand controlled, it swung about and ran into a beach directly beneath the cannery for which it was originally headed.

Fishermen climbed aboard and found the skipper, Charles Waara, 57, dead, apparently the victim of a heart attack.

Shrieking Tribesmen Lay Siege To Frenchmen

ADDIS ABABA, May 5 — A shrieking riot of natives laid siege last night to the French legation where 2,000 foreign refugees are sheltered.

Paul Bedard, the French Minister, witnessed Djibouti that food and water supplies were running low, and there was no telling how long they could hold out.

He appealed for urgently needed help. Djibouti authorities informed him a company of troops was on the way to Addis Ababa by train with a supply of provisions and munitions.

He also was told another force of French colonial troops, garrisoned at Diredawa for the past few months, was proceeding to the Ethiopian capital to bring additional aid.

French Legation Under All-Night-Long Siege

PARIS, May 5.—Armed trucks from the French and British legations in riot-torn Addis Ababa set out on the streets last night in search of dead and wounded, the French minister advised his government by wireless.

The minister, Paul Bodard, also reported an Italian airplane fell in Addis Ababa but gave no details.

Earlier, the minister said Ethiopian soldiers on guard duty at the French legation mutinied and attacked the building. Later messages from him disclosed that the revolt had been quelled from the legation, so it was believed here the threat had been withstood.

Bodard said there are 2,000 foreign refugees in the French legation. A British armed truck returned to the legation with five bodies of two women and a wounded English missionary.

A Greek movie proprietor was killed by looters. Hope was expressed by the minister that Italian troops would enter the city tomorrow.

All Addis Ababa, the minister advised, is occupied by mutinous soldiers armed with machine guns. He expressed fear they planned a mass assault on foreign legations, having already looted the native quarters.

Overalls Cause Trades Rumpus

Do overalls make the man?

Delegate "Paddy" Griffin told the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council Monday night he had seen carpenters and painters in "blue overalls" working on the construction of a new Alberta hotel and "I bet they weren't paid 30 cents an hour even."

Thirty cents is less than the union scale, and white overalls are the conventional working apparel of men engaged in these trades.

Union officials will investigate "Paddy's" suspicions.

STEVENS ATTACKS $3,100,000 VOTE FOR EMPLOYMENT

Sum for Railway Maintenance Work is Termed Straight Subsidy to the Railway Companies.

OTTAWA, May 5.—Extensive subsidies for industry were proposed in the House of Commons last night by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstructionist leader, as $3,100,000 was voted to provide for employment of relief camp workers on railway maintenance work during the summer.

Mr. Stevens asserted and Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of Railways, denied, the vote was a straight subsidy to the railway companies. The government was providing the labor for work on the roadways which was long overdue and absolutely essential.

MOVE IS GOOD ONE

If railways were to be subsidized why not other industries" asked Mr. Stevens. He believed the move was a good one and should be extended. Industries should be subsidized to enable them to modernize their plants and re-employ men who had been laid off.

The vote drew criticism from all quarters of the house as members objected to giving assistance to the Canadian Pacific Railway, to the temporary detriment of the navvy and to its possible effect on regular railway workers.

ENTERING INTO AGREEMENT

The government, Mr. Howe said, was entering into an agreement with the railway companies for the employment of 10,000 men from the relief camps, 5,000 on each railway. The $3,100,000 was to provide for their wages at standard rates. The railways were expected to spend an equal amount on supplies and supervision.

The relief camps had to be closed up as they were a menace to peace and order and the men complained they had no opportunity to get regular employment or provide a future for themselves, he said. The railways had accepted the proposition at some inconvenience to themselves and the arrangement could in no sense be described as a subsidy.

ASSURANCE SOUGHT

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, sought assurance as to what would be done for the men after the summer railway work ended.

The house also approved a vote of $1,000,000 to provide additional grants for grade crossing removal on railway lines.

Provision was also made to the extent of $1,100,000 to assist to the railway companies to enable them to carry on maintenance of way work other than that now supplied under the relief camp workers scheme. This is following a system inaugurated several years ago of helping the railways to provide employment.

VIOLENT RIOTS SWEEP SPAIN

By H. E. KNOBLAUGH
Associated Press Foreign Staff

MADRID, May 5.—Nearly two score persons were wounded and valuable church property was destroyed Monday in the most violent anticlerical rioting in Spain since the left election victory in February.

Riots set fire to more than a dozen Roman Catholic churches and monasteries, and hundreds were wounded when they came into the line of fire as they led children from a burning school.

The disorders centred in the capital, but there also were scenes of violence in the province of Cadiz.

and recommended that the Board consist of three.

This recommendation was adopted and continued in vogue until Nov. 30 last, when James A. Kinney, one of the commissioners, was retired on superannuation.

With the amending bill of the last session, the board is now reduced to one.

NOW FOR ALL

In the past there was considered to be "Labor" representation and "employer" representation on the board. The present government contends that there should be no factions or sections on the board; that it should function for the benefit of all.

Speaking on Saturday, Dr. Wright declared that it was his hope and expectation that with some revision of the administration of the Act that the work would be kept well in hand as a result of functioning as a one man board. It is hoped that claims will be dealt with as they are received.

Mr. Ross, whom Dr. Wright succeeded, was the minister of public works in the first U.F.A. government on its election to power in 1921. He was defeated in the general election of 1926. He had been chairman of the board for eight years.

When reduction of the board to one man was first suggested, it was in the light of having one man being able to sit as a board, the suggestion being made that it would be then possible for one man to sit in Edmonton and another in Calgary and still carry the work on smoothly and save considerable in travelling expenses.

Mr. McNeill has continued as a resident of Calgary throughout his time on the board, coming here as occasion demanded.

In his letter of resignation he has asked that his superannuation be dated from the date of his resignation and this point is under consideration by the government.

INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL UNITS ARE PROPOSED

Five Centres Tentatively Decided Upon For New School Section

Bedplates were laid for organization of intermediate school units under the new curriculum set up by the department of education, at a special meeting of public school trustees, Monday night. The business in hand was discussed in committee of the whole with Trustee F. C. Casselman in the chair, all members being present except Trustee S. Bowcott.

FIVE CENTRES

The meeting decided tentatively on five centres for the new school section, which comprises grades 7 and 8, formerly public school grades, and grade 9, heretofore in high school. Further details of organization and accommodation, based on the five fixed centres, will be brought before the committee at its next meeting by G. A. McKee, superintendent of schools; Dr. C. B. Willis, director of guidance and H. Story, building commissioner.

The five centres will be at McCauley, King Edward, Garneau, Oliver and Parkdale schools. Accommodation for a few outlying districts has still to be considered. A principle of organization agreed upon by the committee was that units should be as large as possible, as a large number of classes in each school would facilitate teaching of everal options in the course.

McCAULEY IN EAST END

Following recommendations made by Supt. McKee and Dr. Willis, McCauley school was fixed as an east end centre, from which all present lower grades will be removed. In other centres, the intermediate units will be adjuncts to the lower schools.

Principal South Side centre will be at King Edward school, which for several years has been functioning experimentally on a similar plan. A centre for the west end of the South Side will be at Garneau, with decision pending as to whether shop work will be carried on at Queen Alex. or the outside building of the old Garneau high school. Oliver was named as a west end centre and Parkdale as a north end centre.

Just before the special board meeting, the school management committee of which Trustee S. A. G. Barnes is chairman, held its regular meeting, regularly scheduled for Tuesday night.

CO-OPERATION ASKED

At this meeting the committee recommended that school principals be asked to give fullest cooperation to Dr. Willis in conducting classification tests for pupils.

Acting on a letter from G. F. McNally, deputy minister of education, stating that special grants for classes for potentially delinquent pupils would be considered if the board provided a teacher with proper qualifications for such work, the committee recommended that teachers be informed that the board is considering formation of such a class.

A motion of Dr. W. Morrish, trustee, "that when appointments of school principals are considered in future, favorable consideration be given to men applicants," passed the committee.

NEW LOW RAIL FARES IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, May 5—Railroad passengers throughout the United States were assured Monday of new low fares—for a time, at least.

A group of major eastern railroads which have vigorously objected to an interstate commerce commission order, slashing fares, filed new rates in conformity with the order, but served notice they would challenge it in the courts.

Effective June 2, the Interstate Commerce Commission prescribed fares of three cents a mile in Pullmans and two cents a mile in coaches. The present fares are 3.6 for both classes of transportation, plus a Pullman surcharge of approximately two-fifths cent. In fixing the new fares, the Interstate Commerce Commission ordered the surcharge eliminated.

HOUSE LIKELY TO LABOR FAR INTO SUMMER

Dozen More Measures to be Brought Down by Government

OTTAWA, May 5.—Prime Minister MacKenzie King's announcement to the House of Commons Monday the government proposed to bring down more than a dozen measures in addition to those already on the order paper, and many of them of a highly controversial nature, indicated members of parliament will probably labor far into the summer.

MAY SET RECORD

It was also apparent the present session, if the program is concluded in its entirety, will set up a new record for legislation passed at the first sitting of a new parliament.

The government proposed, Premier King said, to have legislation based on five of the special commons committees, none of which have yet completed their labors. This will mean amendments to the Pensions Act, changes in the radio broadcasting legislation, revision of the elections and franchise statutes, action with respect to the marketing of wheat and grains, measures respecting pensions administration and returned soldier problems in general, and possibly some new railways legislation.

PROLONGED DEBATE

All these measures are customarily subjects of prolonged debate. Another measure calculated to arouse considerable debate is the proposal, also announced Monday, to amend the criminal code with respect to Section 98. It has been the declared intention of the Liberal party to repeal this section, designed to prevent organization of bodies committed to the overthrow of constituted authority by use of force.

Further measures forecast yesterday included amendments to the Customs Act, minor amendments to the Combines Act, the Proprietary and Patent Medicines Act, the Relief Act, the Drydocks Subsidiary Act, and the Marketing Act, with the possibility of further supplementary estimates.

PROCEED WITH MOTION

The motion involving amendments to the British North America Act, sponsored by Justice Minister Lapointe, will be proceeded with the Prime Minister said and there will be legislation introduced, once the necessary constitutional authority has been obtained from Westminster, to set up a national finance council, and provincial loan councils for those provinces desiring to throw money from the Federal treasury.

In addition to the budget debate the passage of the many resolutions for tax changes and tariff revisions, and the estimates, the House is at present dealing with a half dozen measures that have already caused much debate.

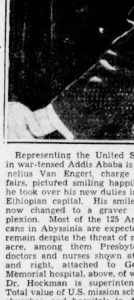

These include the Canadian National-Canadian Pacific Act amendments, the National Harbors board, the resolution on which will be based legislation to acquire ownership of the Bank of Canada, reorganization of several departments, the Copyright Act, and the Canada Shipping Act.

POLICE BREAK DOWN STRIKE

MINNEAPOLIS, May 5. — The request of C. W. Loufek, president of the Northern Oats Company, for police assistance late Monday ended the "sit-down strike" of 60 employees which has been in progress at the plant since Friday night.

Policemen broke down a barricaded door and moved the workers into patrol wagons. They were booked on charges of disorderly conduct.

The management claimed it had had no statement from the strikers as to what they wanted.

PILOT SAVED 40 LIVES BY QUICK ACTION

BOSTON, May 5.—A veteran pilot, using toy boats to illustrate his story, told investigators Monday he saved more than 40 lives by quickly altering a freighter's course just before she collided with another ship in dense fog.

The pilot was Captain Alex Reisar of New York. He was bringing the Canadian Planter to Boston when the Canadian National freighter was struck by the freighter City of Auckland near Vineyard Haven early Sunday. He was the first witness called when United States steamboat inspectors began an investigation Monday.

The investigation started shortly after the rescued Canadian Planter crew had been landed in Boston by the coastguard cutter Mojave. The Planter remained fast aground, with waves washing over her stern.

CHANGED COURSE

Asked by inspectors whether ordering the rudder "hard right" did not throw the vessel directly into the path of the oncoming City of Auckland, Capt. Reisar replied that when he saw a collision could not be averted he changed the course to avoid being hit amidships.

"If we had been struck here," he declared, moving the boats about to show one ploughing into the other near the pilot house, "the boilers would have been hit—people would have been killed—swung about to take it as a glancing blow."

HEARD WHISTLE

Capt. Reisar said his first intimation there was another ship near-by came when he heard two blasts on her whistle. He first actually saw the City of Auckland, he said, when it was only about a ship's length from the Canadian Planter.

The master of the Canadian Planter, Captain Walter C. Manning, testified he agreed with the pilot regarding putting the rudder "hard right."

"It would have caused a heavy loss of life," Captain Manning said, "if the pilot had not put the helm hard right.

"The men got up on the other ship and all of them reached it safely. There was no loss of life or injury to any one," he added.

REMAINED CALM

The Canadian Planter's second mate, Ronald Meldrum, testified both the crash and the pilot remained calm and unexcited when the crash occurred.

The hearing will continue Tuesday.

Thirty-eight members of the Canadian Planter's crew and 5 passenger were brought into Boston Monday aboard the coast guard cutter Mojave, while two officers remained aboard.

Captain William B. Armit, assistant marine superintendent of the Canadian National Steamships, arrived in Boston yesterday and left to board the vessel. Officials said he would determine whether the boat could be salvaged.

BRITISH PRESS LAUDS CANADA TARIFF SLASH

Action of King Government Termed "Courageous" in Editorial

LONDON, May 5.—"The new government of Canada has not been slow in implementing its pledge to reduce tariffs," says the Morning Post today in commenting on the Canadian budget.

"Of particular interest, says the paper, "is the abolition of specific duty on cotton and artificial silk yarns or fabrics of British manufacture. This places the British manufacturer on a more equal footing in competition with the Canadian product."

IMPORTANT CLAUSE

"Article XI is one of the most important clauses in the Ottawa agreement and the step just taken by the Canadian government marks a praiseworthy resolve to fulfill its spirit."

The Manchester Guardian says "there is no need to suppose that the (Canadian) Tariff Board was influenced by any desire to please British opinion." Its judgment, the paper says, was based on the comparison of costs and prices.

GREAT RESTIVENESS

"Nor is there reason," the Guardian adds, "to fear its decision will be unpopular. The Canadian public has been showing great restiveness against the high prices charged by the protective manufacturers, their high profits for conditions of labor."

"The consumers voice has been heard. And the Canadian government is courageous enough to see that any attempt at industrial self-sufficiency does not pay a nation that depends so vitally on exporting."

BREAKS INTO CEMETERY TO BURY BROTHER

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 5 —A man broke into a cemetery Monday to give his brother, a priest, the burial a congregation denied him.

Members of the Ukrainian Greek Catholic Church refused permission for the burial of the Rev. Peter J. Pashkiewicz, 42, in Holy Transfiguration cemetery at Nanticoke, charging he had violated church canons.

The dead priest's brother broke open the lock on the main cemetery gates with a hammer. A constable watched while he smashed the lock, but did not serve a warrant he carried.

ESTIMATES FOR TWO NEW BOATS ARE CHALLENGED

Opposition Protests House Committed to Building Before Vulnerability Against Aircraft Proved.

LONDON, May 5—The "battleship versus aircraft" controversy was aired again in the house of commons last night when Lord Stanley, parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, moved supplementary estimates of £10,500,000 ($51,000,000), including £500,000 ($2,475,000) for preliminary work in connection with the building of two battleships.

Winston Churchill and A. V. Alexander, both former first lords of the admiralty, Sir Francis Acland and others protested the house was being committed to the building of battleships before the committee considering the vulnerability of capital ships against aircraft had reported.

BOUND BY TREATY

Lord Stanley reminded the house that the ships could not by treaty be laid down before 1937 and assured the members they would not be laid down before the committee's report was received.

Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for defence co-ordination, pointed out it would be impossible to lay down the ships early in 1937 unless preliminary work were begun now. He said if the decision were reached that the battleship constituted an essential part of Britain's naval strategy, the Admiralty would do its utmost to ensure the ships were the most effective instrument possible. If the decision were negative, the ships would not be built.

MOTION DEFEATED

The Labor motion challenging the supplementary estimates was defeated 272 votes to 107.

A "RHINELAND" VOTE

French voters swung sharply to the Left on Sunday, as they did a week ago. What is known as the Popular Front coalition—made up of Radical Socialists, Republican Socialists, Independent Socialists, United Socialists, and Communists, hold 375 seats in the Chamber of 618, a majority of 65 over the Centre and Right groups combined. The Communists, who expected to win 66 seats, won 82.

Whatever this may mean in national politics, the significance is plain in regard to international issues. It is an overwhelming endorsement of the alliance with Russia, and a call for uncompromising resistence to Hitler and his Rhineland program.

The outlook for a revision of the treaty of Versailles, in an atmosphere freer of suspicion toward Germany, is decidedly dim.

AN INSPIRATIONAL TAX

Nobody has yet invented painless taxation, but it does not seem probable that the Government of Alberta could have devised a more unpopular tax if it had tried than the new 2 per cent levy on "luxuries".

Two per cent is 2 per cent however it is collected, and in a time of scarce buying power is bound to arouse measureable disapproval. But the manner of collecting this particular tax suggests that it was drawn up with a view to taking the consumer's mind off his other troubles. If so, it is certainly a success. The tax is the talk of the town, and no doubt of the country as well.

To know what he is doing every merchant, every clerk, and every consumer must arm himself with a list of the exempted articles, a copy of the compendious regulations issued in explanation of the act, and a file of the decisions handed out by the Ministers on disputed points of application. To say nothing of the buyer also having to pack around a pocket-load of copper coins, which in this country are about as popular as taxation itself.

To say this is a "nuisance tax" is to understate the fact. If it were possible to collect on the hot language it has inspired, the treasury would be filled in quick time.

PREVENT MORE "DEFAULTS"

It is sound policy to offer to sell city-owned vacant lots for half the prices which have been asked for them, as council has decided to do for a limited time.

It would be equally good business to do what is possible to prevent more property coming into possession of the city through non-payment of taxes. To that end it should be made as easy as possible to pay current taxes. For the same reason, penalties should be reduced and owners of encumbered property offered an inducement to pay, for a stated period.

The property owner may feel that the bargain sale of city lots injures him, since they will be offered at lower prices than he would be willing to accept for his lots. But if this results in a revived demand for property, and in any considerable amount of building being done, he will benefit in the long run more than he can be injured temporarily.

In the same way, the taxpayer who is not in arrears would benefit if those who are in arrears were helped and induced to pay up. The city would thereby get money it may not otherwise receive, its credit would be strengthened, and the taxpayer who cleared off his arrears would be kept on the roll as a payer in future years.

GOOD INVESTMENT

It is estimated that tourists from other countries, most of them from the United States, last year left $100,000,000 in Canada more than Canadian tourists spent abroad.

These tourist spendings were distributed among many classes of businessmen and wage earners all the way from Victoria to Halifax, and passed directly and immediately into circulation in the communities affected. The result upon trade and employment was the same as from the importation of the like amount of money in payment for exported goods.

Since the United States has the larger population, and the larger number of people who can afford an expensive holiday—while Canada has scenery worth paying money to see, the Dominion stands to gain always, and in amounts indefinitely large, from this interchange of visitors.

Hard surfacing of the highways leading to our national parks and other points of interest thus takes on the nature of a business proposition. It will pay in "cash money" if we thereby attract larger numbers of tourists. And that the tourists can be attracted is certain. They will go anywhere a car can go on hard roads, if they know there will be something worth looking at when they get to the end of the journey.

With a net present income, in depressed times, of $100,000,000 a year from the tourist trade, Canada can safely and profitably spend up to $10,000,000 a year for some years in making roads to the parks, improving these playgrounds, and advertising them.

NOW FOR GENEVA

The inevitable happened in Abyssinia. Since neither the League nor the weather would stop the invaders, the tribesmen couldn't. Brave men, though armed with rifles, are no match for mustard gas, bombing planes, tanks, and better disciplined troops equipped with all the latest devices for scientific, systematic, wholesale slaughter.

The defence collapsed when the Italian flying column got within striking distance of the capital. The Emperor fled, and with him went the restraint of authority and the security of foreigners. Massacre and looting broke out, on a scale we will know about later. It is a country without a government, and Abyssinia without a government is an unhealthy place for any white man.

It is to be hoped the invaders are able to establish some sort of control, forthwith and everywhere. They have no lawful business to be there, but being there the least they can do is try to quell the anarchy their coming precipitated, which they will no doubt attempt to do, for humane reasons, and also for their own safety.

As an organized conflict the war apparently is over. Guerilla fighting may continue, but it can only result in further useless killings.

The scene shifts now from Addis Ababa to Geneva, despite Mussolini's pompous declamations. The sanctions are still in force. They did not stop the war, but they crippled Italy's foreign trade. If the victorious troops are to be brought home and demobilized, the industrial problem will be still more severe. How is Il Duce going to get the sanctions lifted, except by making a treaty the League powers can accept without stultifying themselves and inviting a general exodus from the organization?

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

At the time of writing, summer seems to have arrived in Edmonton. That's the third time I've made the confident declaration. The last previous time was when the thermometer stood at 74 in the shade, to be followed by a blanket of snow a couple of days later.

J. S. Cowper

It's probably the real thing this time, because it's accompanied by that distaste for work known as "spring feeling." The distant hills and the seashore beckon. One finds oneself thinking of ocean voyages, of rills rushing down mountain sides to merge with creeks, of walking under the high canopies of great trees in old forests, of leaning over the weather rail of a white-winged yacht as she heels to the breeze. I've been making my annual calculation between the attractions of life in the city in a steam-heated suite with all modern conveniences and a week-end drive into the country, and of pursuing a living on a one-man salmon troller, chug-chugging down the inlets into the gulf at night, trying to keep on top of the salmon shoal, cooking hasty meals on a Primus stove and finding deep sleep on a hard cushion while the little craft rolls and tugs at anchor.

George H. Doran the publisher, in his autobiography "Chronicles of Barabbas" (Revised Version "Now Barabbas was a publisher.") tells an anecdote concerning Lord Beaverbrook (Max Aitken). Beaverbrook lavished comfort and care on his aged father, Rev. William Aitken, after the old man's retirement from the Presbyterian ministry. Says Doran:

"Upon one occasion Max had arranged a trip to Florida for his father and mother. A private car had been provided and the aged couple were prepared to travel in regal state. Taking Lord Beaverbrook aside, the old man expressed his great thanks to his son.

"Beaverbrook hastened to assure his father that what he was able to do and was doing, was but a trifling recognition of his debt to his father. But all this was beside the point, for the Reverend said: 'It is not for these comforts I am thanking you. I am grateful beyond the telling that I do not have to preach another damn sermon.'"

Chatting the other evening with Canon C. F. A. Clough, before addressing a splendid group of young men in the club started by Canon Clough in connection with St. Faith's church, talk turned to the suggestion made to the premier of Canada by the Edmonton Cutty Sark club that some of the disused sailing craft lying in Canadian ports on both oceans be used as training craft for unemployed youths.

Now the Canon, who I had first met as the jolly padre of the Red Chevron club, is quite a specialist in work among young men and boys. The particular group I met comprised several University students and young business men. They had graduated from other clubs and classes for boys and youths that Canon Clough conducts—Boy Scouts, Brownies, etc. I wasn't surprised to learn that because of his experience with youths and his understanding of boy life Canon Clough has been acting as a judge of the Juvenile Court.

Said the Canon:

"I think the training ship method is the very best way of dealing with boys who are apt to run wild. As a matter of fact I made recommendations on several occasions to the late provincial government, urging them to get a training ship for the boys who have to be dealt with by the Juvenile Court.

"It isn't natural wickedness that gets most boys into trouble; it's animal spirits and a love of adventure. With employment scarce they don't get an outlet for their energies or satisfaction for their spirit of adventure. So they steal automobiles or rob stores to find adventure.

"One of the most splendid men I have come across, who is interested in the welfare of youth, confided to me that he had been a wild boy in his day and owed his present progress to having been sent to a training ship. The discipline is severe, but there's an outlet for energy and opportunity to follow adventure. The boys are not disturbed by knowing that freedom and companions are on the other side of a wall. They get into a little world of their own on shipboard and accept discipline in a way impossible in any land institution.

"I'm not in favor of the Borstal system for boys when we have the sea at our doors. We must rid ourselves of the idea that we are an inland people. We have two oceans at our doors and are dependent on water-borne export trade for our national welfare. We should be using the physical energy and the love of adventure of these boys by putting them where their qualites can find useful outlet, training them to man our merchant fleets and defence craft."

Well spoken, padre! There's hardly a problem boy in any Canadian town or city who wouldn't jump at the chance to get away on a training ship and learn the many useful crafts of the sea. Kept at home, spoiling for an outlet for their activities, many of them end up as hardened offenders in the penitentiaries.

There's activity among the old boys of the Prospector's club. They've been waitng for the ice to move in the Athabasca to get their stores and equipment floated down the river. The season is short and the lure of the yellow, incorruptible metal is great.

They tell a story about the troubles of Saint Peter after a lot of old prospectors had been allowed through the Pearly Gates. The ruling passion was still strong in them, and the good saint had his troubles keeping the old chaps from digging up the golden pavements. In his desperation he sought the help of the dean of the old boys.

"I can fix that," said the daddy of the prospectors, "I'll spread a rumor round there's been a big strike of gold in the nether regions. Then watch them disappear."

Sure enough, one by one the old boys packed up their kits and made tracks. Only the man who circulated the false story remained. Three days later he was packing his kit too.

"You're not leaving us?" said the saint in alarm.

"You never know," said the old man, "there may be something in that story."

Preventing Prolapsus

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

The term prolapsus is used to describe the condition which results when the vital organs sag, or fall, from their normal positions. Through the use of the X-ray, we have discovered that fully 90 per cent of all women who present themselves for examination are suffering from prolapsus in some degree. The percentage is low with men, being only about 10 per cent of all male patients who are examined.

Dr. F. McCoy

This great difference is, no doubt, due to the fact that men generally have stronger bodies and are much more likely to have developed strength in the important abdominal muscles.

The principal cause of prolapsus is a systematic weakness. This weakness exists all over the body and its effects are seen in all of the tissues, including muscular tissue. Consequently, the abdominal muscles are weak and unless special attention is given to the development of these muscles they will not be strong enough to hold up properly the stomach, intestines and other organs of the abdomen.

The result of this weakness is that the stomach which should be located just under the ribs, approximately in the centre of the abdomen and above the navel, slips down, often to the very basin of the pelvis with the large and small intestine sharing in this downward sagging.

The undesirable effects of prolapsus include digestive distress, underweight due to interference with assimilation, nervousness, and also the special disorders of women. Very often, a persistent backache which seems to indicate a weakness through the lower part of the back is caused primarily by prolapsus.

The only way I know for a woman at any age to avoid sagging or falling of the abdominal viscera is to take systematic exercise, giving special attention to the setting-up exercises which strengthen the abdominal muscles. The following exercises are ones which I have chosen as being especially beneficial in preventing prolapsus.

The following exercises are to be taken while lying on the back:

1. Hands extended over head. Raises the upper portion of the body. Keep the knees stiff and touch the legs with the finger tips, reaching as far toward the feet as possible.

2. Raise the knees alternately to the chest and return. Raise the knees together to the chest and return.

3. Raise and lower legs alternately, keeping the knees stiff and the toes pointed downward.

4. Raise and lower both legs together, keeping the knees stiff and the toes pointed downward.

6. Hands clasped behind head—slowly raise the arms, head and shoulders as high as possible, attempting to come to a sitting position.

Take these exercises morning and evening and do each one several times, increasing the number of times as you grow stronger. In the beginning, take the exercises slowly to avoid muscular soreness. You will be pleased to find that the abdominal muscles respond to the exercises by an improved tone and by a desirable firmness. You may also be sure that strengthening the muscles in this way will be the best method to follow in preventing prolapsus, or fallen organs.

Poems That Live

A DOUBTING HEART

Where are the swallows fled?
Frozen and dead
Perchance upon some bleak and stormy shore.
O doubting heart!
Far over purple seas
They wait, in sunny ease,
The balmy southern breeze,
To bring them to their northern homes once more.

Why must the flowers die?
Poisoned they lie
In the cold tomb, heedless of tears or rain.
O doubting heart!
They only sleep below
The soft white ermine snow
While winter winds shall blow,
To breathe and smile upon you soon again.

The sun has hid its rays
These many days;
Will dreary hours never leave the earth?
O doubting heart!
The storm clouds on high
Veil the same sunny sky
That soon (for spring is nigh)
Shall wake the summer into golden mirth.

Fair hope is dead, and light
Is quenched in night.
What sound can break the silence of despair?
O doubting heart!
The Sky is overcast,
Yet stars shall rise at last,
Brighter for darkness past,
And angels' silver voices stir the air.

SIDE GLANCES—By George Clark

"You just don't understand mental labor, mother. While I appear to be idle, I might actually be accomplishing more than you."

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date Tuesday in 1835 the county of Middlesex, Upper Canada, came into legal being. A bill for the creation of that county was among the bills reserved for the royal assent on March 6, 1834 (when the bills incorporating the City of Toronto and other towns were approved). The reason for the delay in the case of the county bill when the others were accepted is not recorded, but the probability is that large landholders such as Colonel Talbot made representations lest their interests should be injured. Anyway the bill crossed the Atlantic and came back and on this date in 1835 Sir John Colborne issued a proclamation announcing that the assent of the King-in-Council had been given to "An Act to form certain Townships in the London District into a County and to attach certain Townships to the Counties of Middlesex and Kent in the London and Western Districts." The bill seems to have had a double purpose, of defining the county of Middlesex and subtracting certain townships from Kent, which was one of the original counties in 1792, yet there must have been some sort of county of Middlesex before 1835, for the legislative records show that Mahlon Bidwell represented Oxford and Middlesex in the Assembly in 1813, 1817 and 1820 and Middlesex in 1831, while in 1825 and 1829 John Matthews and John Rolph represented Middlesex. So that perhaps the act of 1835 was one merely to define new limits.

A COMMON CANDIDATE

Editor Bulletin: All of us workers, farmers, middlemen, professionals, men and women want a higher standard of life and in practically every case our desire for a higher purchasing power; all of us are against finance, capital, and the monopolies which are bleeding Canada white, and all of us are against any higher taxes. While Alberta is millions of dollars in the hole the common people of this province do not feel that they are under obligation to pay it for the simple reason that they were bled long enough, and the debt is not a just debt, but a financial racketeers' debt.

The common people, I hope, feel that a nice juicy fat living and all the trimmings that go with it has been supplied the millionaires long enough; they also, I hope, realize that borrowing millions of dollars as did Premier Aberhart, although at a cheap rate of interest is just putting another stone for the people to carry on top of far too many that they already have, and that to pay the principal alone, will for centuries to come, bleed the people white.

Mr. Magor should not have been allowed to come to Alberta, to balance the common people's budget. The budget could and should have been balanced to fit the needs of the people as Mr. Aberhart promised. It is time for the people of Alberta to say: Alberta and all that is in it belongs to us and not to the millionaires. The common folk should protest against Mr. Magor's budget, because it is the opposite to what they voted for, people should get into organizations and should arrange for a joint delegate conference with the object of nominating a common people's candidate for the coming by-election and show Mr. Magor that we don't like his budget, just as we did not like the U.F.A. when the U.F.A. was put out. Mr. Magor was put out, but he horns in as always even under the Social Credit government.

Current Comment

MOVING TOWARDS LOW TARIFF

Many of the announcements in the budget statement of Mr. Dunning were foreseen; and, though important, they merely confirm in detail what was already known in broad outline—as for instance the figures of the deficit, the ghastly statistics of relief grants for the past year and for the depression period, the actual position of the Canadian National Railways, the present financial position of the country, the necessity of additional taxation and the manner in which it is to be levied; and so forth.

But the chief interest in the budget did not centre in these things. It arose everywhere and especially here in Western Canada from speculation as to the manner in which the government would approach the problem of the tariff. The astonishing results of the election were due chiefly to an almost universal dislike of the Bennett government and to a desire for modificatins in our system of high protection. But in fact these two issues were merely the two sides of the same question; for the deep unpopularity of the Bennett government was due more to its harsh, arbitrary and ill-considered tariff policy than to any other cause.

But there were those who read the signs of the times as indicating that history was to repeat itself and that the inherited tariff system would be gently dealt with by the new government on grounds of the vested interests that had developed under the conditions created by the Bennett administration. Predictions to this end were based in part upon the remarkable prescience shown by the industrial constituencies in sending a practically unbroken phalanx of Liberal members to parliament in contrast with the stupidity (there is really no other word for it) shown by constituencies in the West, whose existence depended upon getting the tariff down to more moderate levels, in sending members to Ottawa who held the view that it did not matter whether Canada had any foreign trade or not and that therefore there was no tariff issue. One political commentator, writing for an English publication, thus stated the case: "Within the "party there is a hard core of pro- "tectionist sentiment. In no pre- "vious election were so many Lib- "erals elected for industrial seats . . . "The government must, there- "fore, be prepared to deal with "some insurrection among its pro- "tectionist followers, when it "brings its tariff policy to frui- "tion. Its western supporters, who "have always been the nucleus of "the party's low tariff wing, form "in this Parliament less than one- "fifth of the total Liberal strength "and the Eastern Liberals by "themselves could command a "comfortable majority in the "Commons."

This being substantially the situation the budget statement by Mr. Dunning, as it applied to the tariff, must be regarded as distinctly encouraging. This is definitely a low tariff budget. While there may be grounds for discussion about percentages of reduction and about the relative merit of changes made and not made, it is beyond question that this is a firm forward step taken by the government in the face of very strong pressure with the obvious hearty support of an almost unanimous parliamentary party.

HOW JAPAN DID IT

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

The gigantic growth of the internal commerce of Japan, and the external encimerce of Japan has been one of the wonders of the modern world.

Many theories have been given wide circulation as to how Japan did it. Low wage condition has been one favorite reproach hurled at Japan. The low wage charge is disproved by the fact that since 1932 savings bank deposits and post office savings bank deposits have been increasing steadily—now amounting to billions of dollars. As these classes of deposits are made by wage-earners and small shopkeepers, the wage system must have provided enough to sustain life and to permit large savings.

In effecting the gigantic growth of Japanese commerce, Japan did just one thing: Made money available at reasonable interest rates and reasonable terms of instalment payment to anyone desiring to use money for any purpose of construction, reconstruction, restoration or manufacture.

This is the very first thing Canada needs in order to bring about the restoration of the standard of living in Canada. It is the one thing that Ottawa will pay no attention to; leaving unemployment a national condition and the standard of living an emaciated spectre.

In order that you may have the exact facts of the Japanese action before you, reproduction is made from the 1936 Financial Times banking supplement of the facts given by Mr. Y. Tomita, financial commissioner Imperial Japanese government, which read:

"Ever since Japan went off the gold standard in December, 1931, believing that, in order to overcome the economic depression and restore prosperity, a sine qua non was provision of an adequate supply of cheap money to industry, the government has carried out several measures for this purpose. In the first place, the deposit bureau of the government, between the fiscal years 1932-33 and 1935-36 advanced 1,289 million yen at low interest, mainly to provide for developing agriculture and local industries, to assist the economic revival of distressed villages and for other local purposes. As well, rates on advances formerly granted have been lowered, thus contributing a great deal towards strengthening the trend towards lowered rates of interest.

"Parallel with the foregoing, the Post Office Life Insurance out of its reserve fund, effected advances amounting to 466 million yen during the same period and for similar purposes. These efforts have co-ordinated to help the distribution of money throughout the country and to dispel accumulation of funds in the central market.

"In this way the trend towards lowering of the interest rate continued throughout 1935, the tendency developing gradually from the central to the local markets. For example, the official discount rate of the Bank of Japan has remained steady at 3.65 per cent. since July, 1933, and is the lowest rate so far recorded. Of the total time deposits in all the ordinary banks at the end of June, 1935, 82 per cent. carried interest rates not higher than 4 per cent. per annum, and 56 per cent. had rates of 3.7 per cent. or under.

"In accordance with the decline in interest rates on deposits, those on advances also tended to fall. During three years from June, 1932, the average rate on advances of all the banks was lowered by about 1.1 per cent. and the rate on advances of mortgage banks by about 1.3 per cent., while the average yield of debentures issued during the second half of last year was lower by 2.6 per cent. than that of the first half of 1932.

"Needless to say, cheaper money proved a strong impetus to business enterprise and did much to bring about the recent economic revival, promoting both productive capacity and demand for labor.

"The outcome of developments in the money market is that every section of industry showed steady progress during the year. Increasing activity of business enterprises is revealed by the figures of capital involved in plans of company promotion and extension, which amounted to 1,427 million yen in 1935, an increase of 92 million yen over the preceding year and the highest recorded since 1929."

These are facts—not theories—and cannot be laughed off or argued away. So far as Canada is concerned they are the most important national figures ever published, showing conclusively that no adequate restoration is possible in Canada under the tight money policy. A policy of supplying ample money for all commerce, domestic and foreign, is the only policy which will enable Canada to continue in business as a confederation of provinces. Confiscation of the destructive tight-money policy will disrupt the commission.

FOLLY and FAREWELL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LINDA BOURNE, 25 years old, pretty and independent, is stunned by the sudden death of her father.

PETER GARDNER, newspaper reporter, helps her get a job writing society news. Linda is in love with DIX CARTER, but he goes abroad to study singing. When Peter asks her to marry him she agrees, but postpones the wedding.

HONEY MARION, film star, comes to Newtown, making a "personal appearance" tour. She buys a novelette written by Linda. Linda goes to Hollywood and there, expressing ideas that are really Peter's, she acquires a reputation for being able to discover new stars.

At a party given by Honey Harmon Linda meets BASIL THORNE, director. She goes out into the garden alone. Suddenly Thorne appears beside her, takes her in his arms and kisses her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIV

LINDA refused to accept the threat in Honey's voice. There was no reason for it; therefore it couldn't exist. Smiling and friendly she said good night to Honey and to Basil Thorne separately, and went to her room. Sunday she pleaded work, breakfasted privately, and spent the morning reading. In the afternoon she gathered up a foursome for bridge and at 5 she left without saying more than the most casual banalities to Basil Thorne.

But, returned to her apartment in Beverly Hills, her gaze wandered toward the telephone and each time it rang, exhilaration lifted her swiftly and left her as swiftly as she heard a voice that was not Thorne's.

She wasn't in love with him. She never would be. Then what was it? Linda took an afternoon off—literally—to try to analyze the fascination he had for her, and discover why she seemed to be living in constant anticipation of seeing him again. Being honest with herself, she admitted she wanted him to kiss her again.

"So that's what it is!" Linda said to herself, admitting that the magnetism he exerted was purely physical and yet, being a woman she rationalized. Linda was romantic and she was a gentle-woman. She refused to accept this reason for his attraction. She fitted him into the role of The Man a Girl Dreams Of. She knew all about the other women in his life —Cora Garrett had told her about them—but she let herself go to the extent of believing that she might be the Girl Woman.

The reasoning part of her mind told her that it wasn't and wouldn't be, but the imaginative side told her that it would be intriguing to make sure.

For five days Thorne didn't telephone her. That didn't surprise Linda. She reasoned that he would play his game that way. He knew he had made an impression; now he would let her wonder a bit. He reckoned without Linda's purposefulness. Knowing the situation between Honey and Thorne, she decided she would not see him.

But for once Linda did not abide by her own decision. Basil Thorne telephoned her the sixth day of that week and asked her to dine at his house. To her own surprise, she accepted, and spent the next hour in a fever of dressing. Her hair wouldn't behave. The red frock looked too bold, the white one too virginal, the black one too dressed-up. She wore a frosty gray, pinned violets at the waist and added a mink cape over her shoulders. She was glad then that she was extravagant about clothes. She laughed a little at herself as she put "mad-money" (a hang-over from a girlhood that seemed long ago) into her velvet purse.

Speeding over the smooth roads to Brentwood and Thorne's palatial "shack," as she called the 18 rooms, she reminded herself that she was a grown woman, capable of handling any situation, and that no man only took advantage of a woman when the woman wanted him to. While many men had made love to her in Hollywood, none had presumed to treat her as a woman other than she was. And while she was telling herself these things, her excitement mounted and made her flushed and lovely when she stepped into the great hall of Thorne's house.

He was not there to greet her. Linda was accustomed to bad manners. She had met them frequently in the last year. She was astonished that Thorne had been guilty of such bad taste. A Chinese butler took her wrap. She touched a lipstick to her mouth, patted her hair and lit a cigaret. Then she strolled into the living-room.

There was an eight-foot lounge before the fire and, reposing in unlovely slumber, dressed for dinner with a dressing gown in place of his dinner jacket, was her host. He was snoring gently. Not that the "gently" part helped. He might have trumpeted and the effect would have been no worse. Fastidious Linda shuddered, and was lost to him.

He was aware of her then and opened his eyes, shook his head, rose unsteadily to his feet, and spoke thickly. "Sorry, Little Linda. Dropped off to a nap. Be all right in a minute." His words slurred slightly and he roared, "Cocktails!"

Linda took one from the tray and sipped it. She was stricken to silence. The evening had gone completely flat. She watched Thorne gulp two of the cocktails in quick succession, saw his hand steady and his eyes clear.

She didn't quite know what to do, but when he pulled her down on the lounge beside him and slipped from his grasp, smiling, and still smiling, left him. He didn't realize that she was well down the road in search of a telephone that she had gone.

That finished Basil Thorne with Linda, but it did not remove him from her life. And that week had awakened in her a loneliness, a need for affection to have and to bestow.

The next day he telephoned. He called her at the studio, and he called her at home. He sent her a charming note of apology and enough flowers to lend a funereal effect to her four-room apartment. But she refused to talk to him or see him.

After that she accepted no invitations until she was certain that the guest list did not include his name. She saw him at lunch at the Brown Derby. She met him at the Los Angeles Athletic Club. He sat two tables away from her at the Clover Club, and each time she nodded and smiled, but was careful to avoid having to speak to him. Linda had learned that one does not make enemies in Hollywood.

For many weeks nothing happened to disturb the smooth routine of her way. She had much work to do, and worked hard. She had discovered an elderly actress in the ranks of extras and was writing her first big role for her. She was very careful these days to pick her way surely through the precipices of judgment. She was a success, but, one slip, and she knew she would find her work undone.

Honey Harmon called to tell her that Pete Gardiner's play, "Remembrance," was being done by the Theatre Guild on Broadway. Linda thanked her, had a moment of being happy that Pete had arrived, made a note to send a telegram, asked her secretary to remind her to send it, and forgot all about it. A week later the secretary told her she had sent "the usual telegram" and showed Linda the press clippings about the play. It was a sell-out and Pete was the season's success.

That was at the time that "Take a Letter" was finally being filmed and Linda found herself acting as co-producer. She was on the set all day, in the projection room watching rushes by night, and squeezing sleep in when she could. That picture was all hers.

Young, slim, energetic, she was as attractive to the extra girls as the star herself. They called out shy greetings to her, found ways to wait on her. She was practically a producer. If she liked a girl, she might help her.

"Miss Bourne, there's an extra, a boy, who lives at my boarding house who has asked to know you," one of them said to her one morning. "His name is Dixon Carter."

Miss Bourne didn't flutter a single dark eyelash. She didn't touch the cambric handkerchief in her lap. There was just exactly the right shade of interest in her smile and her voice:

"Really? Dix Carter? Of course he knew me! We were friends when he was in college. I didn't know he was in Hollywood. I'd like to see him some time."

Linda waited for the next line as though it were not terribly important to her.

"I'll tell him if you don't mind. I know he'd like to see you."

Linda smiled and walked away. She wanted to tell the girl her telephone number and address, but she didn't dare. Dix would know where to reach her if he wanted to. The girl had said Dix was an extra. That perplexed her, and she tried to forget it. She tried not to want to see him. But the very next morning, when he came, she told her secretary to show him in, and take a message to someone four floors away and wait for an answer.

"Hello, Dix," she said.

"Hello, Linda," he answered. "I always thought you were beautiful, but then I thought I had only imagined it . . . but, you're just the way I've been thinking of you every day since . . ."

Linda didn't say anything. She couldn't say, "I still love you, too."

Entente Considers Little League Of Nations In South

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, May 5.—The Balkan Entente considered a proposal to establish a counterpart of the little League of Nations for southeastern Europe Monday.

Foreign Ministers here for an emergency meeting obviously were seriously disturbed by Geneva's failure to accomplish many of its aims. So the need of a workable substitute was advanced as one of the most important questions when the first session opened late yesterday.

Arrangement Of Veil Is More Than Ever Important This Season

Pearl-embroidered Russian tiara for the bride.

Juliet cap for bride's headdress.

When the wedding dress has been chosen, the veil and the headdress are the problems to be settled.

The triple-tiered veil is much worn this year, and with it may be worn a halo headdress, or a pearl-embroidered Russian tiara. Or, if you prefer, a triple bandeau would become the fair bride, or the Juliet cap, also shown.

A floral headdress is another possibility for the bride. There are new effects in flowers, in one of which the posies are massed on the head at front and the upper part of the veil is folded back to stand away from the shoulders—a flattering effect.

HEADDRESS DRAMATIZED

Never was a season, in truth, when the bride's headdress received so much attention from designers and was so dramatized. In the present treatment there is a tendency toward height, just as there is in hat trimmings.

A wide disdem of pleated cellophane is one very dramatic mode. The effect is repeated in a bib-like section of the bodice of the dress, and the cuffs of the same. And it is repeated again in the old-fashioned bouquet, which is framed in the pleated cellophane.

Then there is the close-fitting cap of stitched tulle, with a pearl embroidered, interlaced roll border. The veil with this arrangement was also triple-tiered. The little flower girl who accompanied this bride wore a Juliet cap of pearls, and the bride carried a prayer book encased in a pearl-embroidered cover.

Another arrangement is that in which a simple twisted drapery frames the bride's head, from which falls a squared veil which is finished with a fine lace edging. A slit is made in the veil, through which the bride carries her old-fashioned gardenia bouquet.

First Exchange Nurse Arrives At University Hospital From Africa

NOT so much an adventure as a business is the long journey from Port Elizabeth, South Africa, just completed by Miss Jacoba Lansdorp, to Edmonton where she will join the nursing staff at the University hospital, for in her profession as nurse, she has already been engaged in hospitals in Holland, the Dutch East Indies and South Africa. Bleak skies and drenching rain greeted her upon her arrival Tuesday morning, but she feels, nevertheless, that she will like Edmonton as much as she has enjoyed the trip across Canada, for crossing the prairies, "so flat," was like the flat lands of South Africa.

Miss Lansdorp is the first nurse to come to Canada on the newly established exchange system. Two companions who travelled with her from the east will take the place of the two Montreal nurses who accompanied Miss Marguerita Reid of the University hospital to South Africa recently. Professional contacts in distant countries are invaluable in every profession, it is realized, and the recently established Canadian Board for Exchange made the selection from nurses who wished to take positions. Thus comes Miss Lansdorp to Edmonton.

GRADUATED IN UTRECHT

She was born in South Africa, but completed her professional training at Utrecht, Holland. There she went out to the Dutch East Indies to visit her married sister, and of course to become a member of the nursing sisterhood there. Today, she remarked that she is just waiting to commence professional duties, as soon as she can get into her uniform. New surroundings seem all in the day's work.

In the Dutch East Indies and in Africa Miss Lansdorp commented, there is the same general training for disease is the same everywhere. However, the majority of work is with tropical diseases there.

In Port Elizabeth where she was associated with the hospital, they employ no native nurses, although the orderlies are natives. However, the nurses in Johannesburg are always native, to care for the native patients, while European nurses take charge of the European patients. They make good nurses and orderlies, although they are a bit slow and lazy, she thinks.

JAVANESE GIRLS

In the East Indies, Javanese girls of better families take the training and make splendidly efficient nurses, Miss Lansdorp says. The boys, too, are good orderlies. There as in other places it is necessary that girls in training as nurses complete high school work.

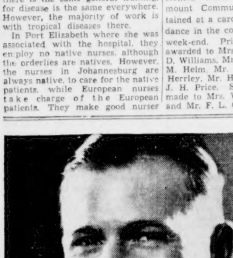

Miss Lansdorp is slight, and charming, with a pleasant manner that must surely win her many friends. She is looking forward to her experience in Canada, where she will remain a year.

The lure of travel is strong, and when she leaves a year hence, she expects to sail from Vancouver for Manila, and spend a short time there, before going to visit her sister again in the East Indies.

Tax Will Take Toll From Teapot

OTTAWA, May 5.—Increase in the sales tax from six to eight per cent, it is believed today, will take its heaviest toll from hoarded, wealth in teapots, stockings and the pockets of women's handbags for women are estimated to make more than 80 per cent of all retail purchases of everyday commodities and clothing.

It was believed the provision in Finance Minister Dunning's budget, allowing free entry of numerous classes of goods valued at not more than $100 and brought home by visitors returning from abroad would remove, in part at least, one breach of the law said to be practised chiefly by women—petty smuggling.

The stylists scanned the list of tariff changes for possible steps to new sales and saw reductions affecting cotton embroideries and lace and rayon fabrics, particularly the variety commonly used in lingerie manufacture.

HATS OFF

The millinery industry and its clients may benefit from elimination of the free list of woven, knitted or plaited hat braids of classes not made in Canada, no more than six inches wide and for use exclusively in the use of hats or shapes. They may not be imported for trimming. Most of the braids come from France and Switzerland.

Some classes of tea and raisins from British dominions were placed on the free list, and raisins from foreign countries will pay customs duty lower by one cent a pound.

PINK ICING IS FREE!

Housewives taking full advantage of tariff reductions would cover their cakes with pink icing sprinkled with cocoanut. Two commodities, dragon's blood and cochineal, good for coloring icing, were placed on the free list and the duty on dessicated cocoanut was lowered.

Girls who give their beaux and male relatives neckties, scarfs and mufflers for presents may gain some encouragement from Item 564A in the tariff list. It records a reduction in the British preferential rate from 27½ per cent to 20 per cent in the duty on Irish poplins composed wholly of silk or wool, not more than 25 inches wide or less than five yards long.

The reduction is 7½ per cent, but the sales tax on the finished product is up two per cent.

Combined efforts of all the Scottish societies in Edmonton are concentrated at present upon arrangement of a whist party and dance which will be held under their auspices in the Moose Temple on Tuesday evening. Cards will commence at eight o'clock. Mrs. W. Mowat is convening the affair and others assisting are Mr. C. Cameron, president of St. Andrew's Society and Mr. Alex Stewart president, and Mrs. D. Black vice president of the Caledonian Society.

NO ONE is immune, and there is no antidote for it—spring fever. But does anyone really want to be immune? I should like to follow the spring. To watch her throw that light veil over the world when winter's blanket is torn aside, then farther and farther north. Could you race along with the Spring, do you think, and escape her capricious mood makes her sullen and ugly, and she storms about in a nasty tantrum, only to beguile you a moment later with a lovely sunny smile, and go flying on. In the morning she powders shining dew on the green grass, and there is again a sweet singing beauty about her.

The robins know enough to follow the spring, only some of them grow tired of the flight north and stay with us a little while. And are we glad to have them?

We have often wondered if all the people who crowd the hill along Victoria Drive, and sit on the fence where they can command the double turn of the river, are seeing the fine loveliness of the valley, living again, or are they just sitting there. Some of them are plainly discouraged, and never lift their heads, you will notice. Others stretch out on the hillside with hats over their eyes, simply seeping up the first summer sun. We heard one man say the other day, "They'll have to blow up the car tracks." I guess he was thinking of the proposed bridge improvements, although "blowing up," literally, in Edmonton, sounded a little drastic, especially on such a serene sort of morning.

We wonder if they don't think. Here we sit, while the river flows from the mountains to the sea. We shouldn't we be off somewhere too, just as inevitably, just as beautiful. That, anyway, is what our particular spring fever does to us.

The gardeners exult over each green shoot, and can tell you quite positively what it is. They can be seen raking about and tending small red fires. Some people feel the urge to move house outside and plunge into an orgy of cleaning. That is the king of fever for which we should like to be inoculated, although so far it has shown no symptoms.

The air was split today with the most blood curdling whoops from two small boys. One was high in a tree. "O.K. Tarzan," shouted his friend. "Here I am."

You couldn't have the fever without wanting a complete change of wardrobe wanting, you know. It's the time of year when you get most tired of being greeted in the morning by your same old face. And about everything possible has been said and written about hats this year, but we did love the sketch in New Yorker of the elderly woman trying on hats and commenting, about the aquat little nothing being placed over her large, determined head, "It's the kind of hat you could just put on and forget."

TO A GARTER SNAKE

Winter over,
Doff a skin
For the gayer one
Within.

Eden,
Had it known
How trying
Is this thing
Of wardrobe buying.
Surely would have

Duchess Of York Writes To Fellowship

Solicitations were forwarded from the Sussex Fellowship of Edmonton to the Duchess of York, during her recent illness, expressing the hope that the air and scenery of their beloved home county, where she spent her convalescence at Compton Place, Eastbourne would prove most helpful to her. The letter received by Mrs. C. A. Russell, brought the following gracious reply from Her Royal Highness:

145 Piccadilly,
W.1.
April 17, 1936.

Dear Madam,

I am desired by the Duchess of York to express to you and to all the members of the Sussex Fellowship, on whose behalf you wrote on the 27th, Her Royal Highness's warmest thanks for your very kind wishes.

I am to assure you that both the Duke and Duchess thoroughly enjoyed their stay in Eastbourne, and the expedition they made to Winchelsea and other parts of the county, and both their Royal Highnesses and the two little Princesses have carried away with them the pleasantest recollections of Sussex.

I remain, Madam,
Yours faithfully,
HELEN GRAHAM
(Lady in Waiting).

Sanctions Were Too Late Says Peace League

Active interest which members of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom take in world events was clearly revealed at their most instructive meeting and open discussion in the Y.W.C.A. building on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. W. A. McConkey, their president, dealt with current news, discussing chiefly the failure of the League of Nations to halt Mussolini, and attributing this failure in the main to the fact that sanctions were invoked too late and then with insufficient vigor and consistency. She pointed out, however, that it is nevertheless generally conceded that even these inadequate sanctions had certain effectiveness, in the fact that there is room for both economic and financial sanctions might be developed as conclusive measures against an aggressor.

REFUGEES PROBLEM

Stirred by a report submitted by Mr. James McDonald prior to his recent resignation from the position of commissioner for the League of Nations dealing with refugees from Germany, the Toronto branch of the W.I.L. for Peace and Freedom has sent to the Edmonton unit a resolution calling on the League to continue and increase its efforts on behalf of these people. At their meeting it was passed unanimously.

Mrs. Ray Scharman gave a most interesting paper, "Conquest of the Air, the Major Task of Our Generation," by Henri Bouche, editor of "L'Aeronautique."

Final plans were discussed for their annual springtime tea which will be held in Talmud Torah hall on Wednesday afternoon, May 20. Mrs. W. A. McConkey, president, will supervise arrangements which will be in the hands of Mrs. G. Elliot, convener of the social committee; Mrs. L. Podersky and Mrs. Kramer.

Marriage Contract Assures Happiness

It seems to me that nothing would go farther toward ironing out the difficulties and perplexities of marriage and promoting its success than for all prospective brides and bridegrooms to have drawn up for them a marriage contract which they would have to sign in the presence of witnesses, and which would set forth in legal terms the nature of the partnership into which they were entering, and how they were to divide its duties and share its emoluments, if any.

Dorothy Dix

You may say that all of this is included in the marriage ceremony, but the trouble with the marriage ceremony is that it deals in vague promises and glittering generalities. It does not get down to brass tacks. What is needed is a definite code of conduct to which husbands and wives must live up, or else pay the penalty.

The truth is that most engaged couples go around on a kind of sentimental jag in which they see the future as they wish it to be, and not as it is. Certainly it would have a sobering effect upon them to be forced to consider calmly and dispassionately what obligations they are assuming, and the privileges they are forfeiting by getting married, before they sign on the dotted line.

Most domestic storms are literally tempests in teapots. Husbands and wives quarrel over little things, the breakfast coffee. About staying home or going to the movies. About the man having a blonde stenographer or playing poker with his old cronies now and then. And about how many hats the wife shall have. About visiting relatives. And so on and on. These questions cannot be settled after marriage without friction, but before marriage they could be amicably arranged, or else the deal could be called off if either was not willing to agree to the other's terms.

And how much could be saved in the way of tears and pangs of feelings if the amount of personal liberty both the husband and wife were to have was explicitly defined and agreed to in the marriage contract. The thing that makes both men and women yearn to make a sneak from their own firesides is the knowledge that they can't get away from without an argument and a row, and telling just where they are going and what they expect to do, and leaving the husband or the wife looking illused or neglected. If married couples would sign a cast-iron agreement to leave the front door on the latch, there would be a lot more home-staying husbands and wives.

Finally, a marriage contract would go far toward stopping divorce, not only by making a man and woman realize what they were going into when they got married, but also what they would get out of it if they broke up their marriage.

It is folly in these days, when one marriage out of six ends in divorce, not to provide for the case of bad luck, and to settle before marriage about the children and the alimony. Women profit most by the alimony racket, and many a one would not be so quick to buy a ticket to Reno if she knew that the marriage contract only entitled her to hold her husband up for small pickings. DOROTHY DIX.

Curly Hairlines Are Generally Becoming

By GLADYS GLAD

Although the weather was not particularly conducive to a parade this year, the avenues were thronged with smartly garbed Easter paraders just the same. Women in swanky tailored suits and smart coats, and men in striped trousers and cutaways gave a fashion show worth seeing. But what intrigued me was the fact that the youngsters in the parade were just as smartly attired as their mammies and pappies.

Although women often do not realize it, little girls have just as much of a yen for a new bonnet as their mothers have. They like pretying up. And I've yet to see any little lass that didn't have an overwhelming desire for curls. Little Jane Withers of screen fame is just like other little girls in this respect. Ordinarily, you know, Janie wears her hair straight, but in her next picture, her hair is going to be arranged in a tumbled mass of soft curls and ringlets.

GENERALLY BECOMING

The new Jane Withers hair style is one that should prove becoming to practically every small child, as it forms such a soft, flattering frame for the face. This hairstyle can be arranged very easily by doting mothers. Before it is arranged, the hair should first be shampooed with a pure, bland soap and tepid water, and then rinsed thoroughly. Then the curls should be rolled into place while the hair is still moist. The hair should be about an inch below the ear in length, and while still moist should be blocked into squares, as for a permanent wave. These squares should be about an inch in length and width. Then each squared-off strand of hair should be rolled up on an aluminum curler, and when in position it should be pinned into place with bobby pins, and the curler extracted.

The entire head of hair should be blocked and curled in this fashion. In the back, however, aluminum curlers should be used and left in the hair, to give additional strength to the back curls. When the hair has been properly curled up, it should be permitted to dry. And the pins should not be removed until there is no least remaining sign of moisture. When the hair is thoroughly dry, however, the bobby pins should be removed, and each curl should be combed out and then brushed softly about the finger.

Vegetable Cocktails Are Most Delicious

By MARY E. DAGUE

Spring fevers in the air but the food you serve can help check it. If you feel you're in a rut, make a vigorous effort to get out of it right now. Perhaps you have been beginning your noon and evening meals with hot soup. Make a sharp turn and try fruit or vegetable cocktail for a change.

Sister Mary

If you go in for cocktails, though, be careful to see you don't repeat the motif in the main course of dessert. If you serve fruit cocktail, have vegetable salad. If you start with fruit, go on to vegetables done with mayonnaise or a good French dressing.

In making fruit cocktails, it is well to include one bland fruit in combination with two or more tart ones. A dash of lemon juice improves all appetizers, fruit and vegetable alike.

Vegetable cocktails must be crisp and well seasoned. Better not combine too many materials; one or two or at the most three vegetables will be enough. A suspicion of onion never is amiss in a vegetable appetizer. George Rector calls the onion "vegetable vanilla."

Good vegetable combinations are cabbage and carrots, tomato and celery, beets and cauliflower, cucumbers and radishes, and also the fruit and vegetable combinations that are refreshingly piquant.

The following recipes will give you an idea how to make up other combinations. Servings are small.

CABBAGE AND CARROT COCKTAIL

Three-fourths cup finely shredded cabbage, ¼ cup grated carrot, 2 tablespoons minced celery, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 dessp. onion juice.

Let cabbage stand for one hour in ice water which more than covers. Dry between towels. Add carrot, celery, salt, lemon juice and onion juice. Toss with a fork until thoroughly mixed. Chill well. Serve garnished with threads of green pepper and pimento.

TOMATO AND CELERY COCKTAIL

One good sized tomato, 4 tablespoons minced celery, 4 large ripe olives.

Peel tomato and cut in four slices. In the centre of each slice pile a spoonful of celery. Cut olives from stones in neat sections lengthwise and arrange them on the celery radiating from the centre to the edge of the tomato. Be sure the tomato is thoroughly chilled before peeling.

FRESH PINEAPPLE COCKTAIL

This is especially good as a starter for a fish dinner.

One cup diced fresh pineapple, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons blanched and shredded almonds, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, few grains salt.

The fruit should be cut in neat dice, sprinkled with sugar and placed on ice for six or eight hours or over night. One hour before serving add almonds and lemon juice. Serve in chilled glasses, using the juice as well as the fruit. This rule will serve four to six persons.

A strawberry cocktail never loses its appeal. Wash berries, choosing perfectly shaped and colored fruit with crisp looking hulls. Pack the small end of an egg shell firmly with powdered sugar and turn out on individual plates. Arrange the berries in a wreath around the sugar and serve.

Tomorrow's Menu

LUNCHEON: Veal salad, Virginia spoon bread, hot chocolate.

DINNER: Fresh pineapple cocktail, baked mutton, new potatoes in cream, buttered beets, cucumber and lettuce salad, cream puffs, carnations, milk, coffee.

What To Do

Do I understand that a rug can be washed right on the floor? My dining room floor is soiled in places and worn in others, but I cannot afford to buy a new one right now. I will be very grateful if you will tell me just how I can wash my rug?

MRS. R. S. C.

Answer—No need to have a soiled rug when it can be successfully washed at home. First remove the loose dirt. To do this run a vacuum cleaner over the top and under sides several times; or, better still, take it in the back yard and give it a good beating. Then make sure the colors will not run by experimenting on an inconspicuous corner or on a part underneath the davenport with a soapy solution made of one part of mild soap flakes to three parts of hot water. Make this solution the night before applying it to the rug. Scrub a space about nine inches in diameter with a circular motion, wipe it off with a clean, damp cloth and then rinse again with a second cloth until all of the soap has been removed. If some parts of the rug are soiled more than others, scrub these several times before removing the lather. The scrubbing will draw the edges of the previously washed places. As a final touch, brush the pile of the rug in one direction and then keep the family off until the rug is thoroughly dry.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL. COCHRANE Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

"Sit 'round the toadstool table, tots, and I will serve you lots and lots of very tasty turkey. I have cooked it nice and brown.

"There's plenty here for all of you, and you can stuff until you're through." It didn't take the happy Tinies long to sit right down.

"I want a drumstick," Duney said. "Just cut it right off of the side. Say, can I pick it up and eat it right out of my hand?

"This really is a dandy treat that I just don't care how I eat. Hey, tots, make room for our kind friend, so he won't have to stand."

The old prospector smiled and said, "I'll be your waiter, tots, instead of sitting down and eating with you. It will be more fun.

"I do not care how you all eat, just so you all enjoy my treat. I'm sorry that you had to wait for this bird to get done."

"Oh, that gave us an appetite, so everything worked out just right," said Goldy. Then the old prospector carved as best he could.

The Tinies started eating fast, and Dotty said, "This bird won't last us but a very short time. That's because it is so good."

Just then a pigeon swooped down low. The old prospector shouted, "Oh, here's Blackie, one of my trained pets, and he gives me a hunch.

"I'll whistle and he'll understand. Just watch! He'll land right on my hand. You Tinies sit right where you are, and keep on with your lunch."

The next thing that the Tinies knew, right to the man the smart bird flew. The old prospector wrote a note and folded it up tight.

"He'll fly this message far for me, and carry out my plan," said he. "I'll tie the note right to his leg, and he'll sail out of sight."

(The answer to the prospector's note arrives in the next story.)

Your Children —

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

O. R. Barton

There is a remarkable change for the better in the general posture of children in the last two decades.

Twenty years ago, almost nothing but the life-giving properties of cod-liver oil and sunlight. Babies then were either fed too much of the wrong foods or two little of the right; as a result and percentage of children either were shoulder braces to "make them stand straight" (as though they could) or leg braces to bring poor, curved, rachitic bones back to normal.

Observe today, a school let out. Watch the hundreds of small figures in line suddenly rocket in all directions. Twenty, and certainly not thirty, years ago would such a group have held their heads so high, their backs so straight or moved their legs so sturdily as the youngsters of today do.

THAT NEW NECKLINE

When I first see a child I look almost instantly to see if his head is set "straight" on his neck. Nothing thrills me more than what I call the new neck line. It is a source of constant wonder to me to note the absence of the old tenor-fifteen degree forward angle, as though Atlas were trying to balance his world at a risk to gravity.

So be thankful with me, dear mothers, that your children are the straight little ramrods they are. Be grateful that you live in an age when science has harnessed fish-oil and sunlight and put nature to work for you.

Yes, it all happened in Mary's and David's babyhood. It was what you couldn't see at the time when the doctor insisted on the oil and the diet and the sun. When you fussed on tired days because it all seemed a bit absurd and too much trouble to bother with.

REGIMEN PRODUCES RESULTS

If there is a baby in the family now—perhaps there are still times when all this business of strained vegetables, milk prepared so-and-thus, orange juice, oil, sunbaths and what not—annoy you to death.

If you are attacked by periods of discouragement, then please think ahead. Don't you picture your young David as a sort of Greek god? Head up, chin where it belongs, shoulders naturally back, stomach in, hips in and legs straight and strong?

Barring accidents, your baby will be that way. All the regimen for the young has results as sure as summer. It is not guess-work and not fad. The baby carefully nourished, rested and sunned; the little child correctly fed, rested and exercised; the youth's appetite wholesomely satisfied and his hours regulated—all this is the story of strength and health.

And through it runs the plot of the vitamins. Life-giving forces caught and held in food, sun and air.

Trampled To Death

FRANCE LOOKS QUIETLY AHEAD AS VOTE OVER

Socialists Ready to Form and Lead a Popular Front Govt.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS, May 5—The battle over, France looks quietly ahead.

Leon Blum, Socialist leader, declares the Socialists, who are now the largest party in the chamber of deputies, are ready to form and lead a popular front government.

Marcel Thorez, general secretary of the Communist party, says the rich can now be made to pay by levies on big fortunes. "We shall dissolve the Leagues of Civil War," he says. "We shall cry to the organization of peace on the basis of collective security within the framework of the League of Nations."

LOOK TO FUTURE

"We have a majority sufficiently large to apply our program. The members of our party may contemplate the future with joy."

The man in the street takes the situation calmly. The heavy swing to the left is regarded not as approval of Bolshevist revolutions, but as a protest against the continued crisis of unemployment and the drift towards war. Hard times have borne heavily on civil servants, artisans and small traders who normally constitute the moderate element in French politics. Yesterday they swung to the extreme left, but in protest, it is commented, rather than from conviction.

INCAPABLE OF SOLUTION

Paul Reynaud, who narrowly escaped being defeated by a Communist in the financial district of Paris, declares the Paris region and the north voted Communist "because we have shown ourselves incapable of solving the crisis."

"Because I said that two years ago," he asserts, "I was treated as public enemy No. 1. To be Nationalist does one have to be shortsighted?"

Reynaud favors devaluation of the Franc.

For the first time manual workers, small traders and farmers will among the 277 new members of the chamber, exceed professional men. Lawyers still top the professional list with 35. Manual workers and artisans together have 41. They are chiefly from Paris and the northern industrial districts.

FINAL FIGURES

Both the Right and the Left benefitted at the expense of the Centre. The Radical Socialists, Socialists and Communists together got 56 per cent of the total vote against 49 per cent in 1932. The Right groups clinched as the National Front received 34 per cent against 32 per cent in 1932. The Centre groups dropped from 19 per cent in 1932 to 10 per cent.

INTIMATE GLIMPSES AND INSIDE STUFF ON THE MOVIE COLONY

By PAUL HARRISON

If ever Heaven forbid you break your back, or lose an eye, or are stricken speechless, you might try cheering yourself with meditation on all the fortuitous accidents that have happened to people in Hollywood.

A throat ailment made Bing Crosby, a crooner, provided him with the soft, husky timbre that figurement brought determination to try for straight acting roles.

William Wellman probably would be a transport pilot today, if he hadn't been injured so severely in a crash at the front during the war. At least, he wanted to continue flying, but the Department of Commerce decided he wasn't physically fit.

So he drifted to Hollywood, became one of the best directors, and is able to own planes and do all the private flying he wants.

Even Carole Lombard might not have reached dramatic prominence ——and certainly not as soon—— she hadn't been severely lacerated in an automobile accident. Before that she had been only a fleeting bathing beauty, but fear of disfiguration brought determination to try for straight acting roles.

B. C. PLAYERS PLEASE LOCAL THEATREGOERS

Make Appearance in Drama That Won Second Place At Festival

Stirring the audience by the sheer, stark drama of its human situations and bringing roars of applause with every "flashback," "Waiting for Lefty," Clifford Odet's play presented by the Progressive Arts club of Vancouver, enjoyed a large and enthusiastic audience in the Empire theatre, Monday night. The production, which won second place in the recent Dominion Dramatic Festival at Ottawa, came to Edmonton for a one-night appearance before the cast continued its journey to the coast city.

HUMAN PASSION

Human passion very much in the raw was the keynote of "Waiting for Lefty," which portrays the events which led up to a taxi strike as the "haves" battled with the "have-nots" for the right to a decent living standard. Incidentally, the play caused a considerable furore when first produced last year in a back street hall in Vancouver. Police took objection to the vehicle's Socialistic spirit. The play continued to run, however, when producers agreed to alter some of the terms which appeared objectionable.

It may be safely said that "Waiting for Lefty" is one of the best amateur productions that Edmonton has had the privilege of witnessing. Players were excellent in their parts. The setting was simple, and the directors employed something novel in staggercraft—the "flashback". The background remains the same throughout the play, footlights flashing out for a few seconds while players come down-stage to present a scene from the past as the lights go up.

The plot centres around a taxi-drivers' union meeting. Skilfully, the cast carries its audience to the climax where a strike is declared following the slaying of "Lefty," a cabman who evidently agitated too much for a betterment of conditions to suit "big business."

A short, one-act play, "The Bear," by Anton Chekhov, was a preliminary in the program. Those taking part were Muriel Hepburn, Theo Beresky and Guy Glover.

The play was produced by Garfield A. King and Mr. Glover, leading lights in the Vancouver Little Theatre.

It is interesting to note that the Progressive Arts Club of Vancouver has in its membership many young unemployed interested in the bettering of the drama and sister arts.

Folk music by members of the cast provided a pleasing interlude in the program.

MEAT PACKERS ARE ATTACKED

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Interrupting witnesses appearing in opposition to the tax bill, chairman Harrison (D., Miss.) of the Senate Finance committee Monday accused meat packers of using "propaganda" tactics intended to "delay" the legislation.

In the midst of argument against the revenue measure by a spokesman for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Harrison read extracts from a letter described as written by the Institute of American Meat Packers. He said it advised its members to "buy a railroad ticket to Washington and stay there," and suggested efforts be made to testify before the committee.

(The tax bill would repeal existing corporate taxes and instead tax net income of corporations up to 42½ per cent, depending upon how much was withheld from distribution as dividends. The normal income tax rate of four per cent would apply to dividends received by stockholders).

Famed Old London Omnibus Arrives For Jubilee Fete

VICTORIA, May 5.—"Old Bill," one of the two survivors of early war days when a string of London omnibuses were sent to France to carry British troops to the battle front, arrived here Monday aboard the M.S. Pacific Enterprise.

The famous old bus, which is being preserved as a battle relic, is on loan to the Vancouver Jubilee committee.

Freak Calf

HULL, Que., May 5.—Birth of a freak calf with seven legs, two heads and two tails to a cow owned by John Dunlop at nearby Meach lake was disclosed Monday. Both the cow and calf died, said Dr. Bruce Kennedy, veterinarian.

TREKKER WINS HIS ACQUITTAL

REGINA, May 5.—Morris Deane, one-to-Ottawa trekker, won an acquittal on two charges in King's bench court Monday afternoon after the jury considered the evidence for more than an hour.

He was charged with rioting and assault of Constable G. Carroll, R.C.M.P. in the Dominion Day disturbances last year.

Deane, 22 years of age, a blacksmith who migrated from England at the age of 17, was alleged to have thrown rocks. Mounted policeman testified that he was struck by a "first aid" kit and wore a red cross band on his arm at the time.

The acquittal is the fourth since trials of trekkers opened April 14. Seven men have been convicted so far.

Next trial, opening Tuesday is that of Sidney J. S. Lumsden, trekker charged with rioting and assault of Constable C. A. Anderson of the Regina police.

Extra Vote For Grade Crossings Voted In Commons

OTTAWA, May 5.—An extra vote of $1,000,000 for the grade separation fund, to be used to eliminate dangerous railway crossings, passed through the House of Commons last night.

Members on all sides urged the vote be increased but railways minister C. D. Howe said it was sufficient to meet all applications ordinarily received from municipalities. If it were insufficient, the government would consider increasing it.

Thomas Reid (Lib. New Westminister) said there were 30,532 unprotected railway crossings in Canada although $36,000,000 had been spent in the last 20 years.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Recon. Kootnay East), Denton Massey (Cons. Toronto-Greenwood) and Frank Leonard (Cons. Wentworth) urged more money be spent.

World's Largest Protestant Body Will Be Formed

COLUMBUS, O., May 5. — The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, committed last night to a program of unification with other Methodist branches to form the world's largest Protestant body—a Methodist church having 8,000,000 members in 42 countries.

Conference delegates voted 470-63 to approve the program of union with the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and the Methodist Protestant church after their leaders visioned in plea for the merger the possible union of all Protestant churches into a single denomination.

The unification proposal goes now before the annual conferences of the Southern church and the Methodist Protestant church, with final ratification possible in 1938 at the general conference of the Southern church.

Freighter Burns But Crew Rescued

WALNUT POINT, Va., May 5.—James A. Lewis and 20 men of Chesapeake Bay oil screw freight and passenger boat James A. Lewis said last night they had turned off Rappahannock Point but that Captain Charley Greene and his crew of six were safe.

The Lewis burst into flames after an explosion in her engine room. The crew took to a lifeboat and were picked up by another bay vessel, the Seminole.

Believe Fishing Boat Foundered

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., May 5.—Fish crates bearing the initials "J.E." have been picked up along the Newfoundland coast, and fishermen putting into this port for bait expressed fears the Banker Jennie Elizabeth had foundered.

The Elizabeth has not been reported for three weeks and another schooner, May Ruth, had made two sailings since she sailed for the Banks the same day as the missing vessel.

VANCOUVER, May 5—Vancouver is to have a civil bureau of identification containing citizens' photographs, signatures and index fingerprints, Superintendent H. Darling of the Vancouver city criminal investigation department announced last night.

The scheme will be voluntary.

Marine Insurance Rates On Hudson Bay Route Lower

OTTAWA, May 5.—Marine insurance rates on the Hudson Bay route have been reduced for the coming year and the season extended eight days, Railway Minister Howe announced in the House of Commons Monday.

The season this year will last from Aug. 5 to Oct. 10 before surcharges are added to marine insurance. The season last year was from Aug. 10 to Oct. 7.

The reduction of insurance rates amounts to 25 per cent. A vessel of 5,000 tons valued at $250,000 equipped with gyro compass will pay $525 per round trip this year. The same boat in 1933 paid £1,500; 1934, £1,250; 1935, 1937. If not equipped with gyro compass the boat would have paid £1,750 in 1933; £1,500 in 1934; £1,125 in 1935 and £843 in 1936.

who is handling the mayoral duties at city hall in the absence of Mayor Jos. A. Clarke, K.C., who is confined to his home by illness.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Considerable opposition has already developed to the new two per cent. sales tax adopted May 1 by the provincial government, which estimates the impost will net government coffers approximately $2,000,000 a year.

Effect of the new tax is realized most forcibly by housewives who purchase a good part of the families' needs, and with this idea in mind the B.I.R. today asked the "lady of the house" the following question: "As you have had an opportunity of watching the practical effect of the sales tax on your purse, what is your idea of the levy?"

Here are the answers:

MRS. J. C. BOWEN, 9847 86 avenue: "My reaction to the new tax is certainly not one of sympathy with the government. A tax of this kind on the buying public coming, as it does, at a time when pressure of economic conditions makes it difficult for many to make a living, is very unfair, in my opinion. While there are many exemptions clothing is not one of them, and it is here that the mother with several children to dress finds the tax an added burden on her more or less meagre purse. Clothing is a necessity and not a luxury, and from this standpoint should have been exempt from the tax."

MRS. J. F. PLANTE, 10310 110 street: "I would say the sales tax is nothing less than an imposition in view of the financial condition of most people. It was hard enough to find money for our requirements before the government's demand of two cents on every dollar makes it doubly difficult. Besides, we were given to understand before the elections that the government did not favor additional taxation. Their recent action certainly places them in a bad light in the face of their pre-election promises."

* * *

MRS. R. LINKE, 9444 100A street: "Well, I suppose it's no good complaining about the tax now that it is in effect. We'll have to pay it, no matter what objections we have. But it does seem to me that it is an unfair levy on the part of the government, particularly during the present depression. Surely they could have found some other way of raising the money they needed."

* * *

MRS. H. P. GALLIMORE, 9752 89 avenue: "Well, Mr. Inquiring Reporter, you ask me for my candid opinion of the new tax—I think it's rotten. Most foods are exempted, but there are lots of other things which we find necessary to purchase, such as clothing, and we are going to have to meet the tax on these. The provincial government found it had to default on its bonds a short time ago; if these taxes are continued, I think a lot of us will have to default, too."

* * *

MRS. E. THOMPSON, Vancouver visitor: "Perhaps I shouldn't be too critical, since I'm on the outside looking in. But I've felt the effect of the tax as we're during my stay in your city. Judging from the news we got at the coast, the Social Credit party was supposed to give a sort of Utopian administration. This tax idea is as old as the hills. Any government can put that into effect—it doesn't take brains. But your government promised you no additional taxation. Well, look at what you've got."

MRS. JAMES ALCOCK, R.R. 2, South Edmonton: "I don't think anyone is going to be hurt very much by the sales tax. The government has exempted from taxation a lot of the articles which are prime necessities—most foodstuffs, for instance. The tax falls heaviest on luxuries, and the principle of fair taxation has always been that the levy be made on luxuries. Anyway, if we did not make our contribution to the government through the sales tax, we would find we would have to make it some other way."

Conservative Leader Attacks Premier and Social Credit Party For Failure To Implement Election Promises.

Stressing the dire financial and economic plight in which Alberta now finds itself and envisioning darker days unless remedial measures are taken, D. M. Duggan, Alberta Conservative leader, in addressing a banquet of the Edmonton Conservative association, appealed to his colleagues to lay aside party politics and join with others for the rehabilitation of the province and the good of the people as a whole.

If necessary, said Mr. Duggan, he himself would be glad to stand aside in the working out of the tremendous problem facing the province.

In the course of his address Mr. Duggan delivered a strong attack upon Premier William Aberhart and the Social Credit party for the election promises made and failure to implement them.

The banquet was given in honor of Mr. Duggan and all those Conservative candidates who contested Edmonton seats in the provincial general election of Aug. 22 last and the Dominion general election of Oct. 14.

CAIRNS PRESIDES

L. Y. Cairns, president of the Edmonton Conservative association, was the presiding officer.

Splitting his address, "Alberta's Financial and Political Plight," Mr. Duggan, who was the main speaker of the evening, declared that among the factors responsible for the conditions in which the province found itself today were the diminution of value of Alberta's agricultural products; the burden of agricultural and unemployment relief; failure of the government to live within its income; conflict between orthodox and heterodox finance and concentration on party politics instead of provincial welfare.

ANNUAL AVERAGE VALUE

Giving figures on the provincial agricultural situation from 1928 to the present time, Mr. Duggan pointed out that the annual average value of wealth produced from Alberta farms during the last six years, was approximately $100,000,000 less than the average covering the years 1928 and 1929.

"Agriculture is the basis of our provincial wealth," he said. "With this drastic decline in our pro-

Change in the location of the Liberal primaries, Nov. 29 on the South Side was announced at Liberal headquarters today. As originally announced, primaries for this poll were to have been held at 8 p.m. Tuesday evening, May 5, at the El Ralto cafe, 10470 Whyte avenue. SECOND VICTIM OF CRASH DIES

Railway crossing accident at Lacombe, Sunday evening, which cost the life of Mrs. A. B. Dwan, 55, of that town, claimed a second victim when her husband, Councillor A. B. Dwan, 54, died in Lacombe hospital at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dwan reside in Edmonton. Mae, member of the graduating classes of nurses of the General hospital, and Florence, stenographer. Another daughter, Marion, lives at Ponoka, and a son, Walter, is a mechanic at Lacombe.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwan were driving in a truck which was struck by a C. P. R. freight train at the crossing, four miles north of Lacombe.

Inquests have been adjourned to Monday, May 11, to allow time for the C. P. R.'s investigation.

Mrs. Dwan was born in Saskatwick, Norway, and was prominent in the Catholic Women's League. Mr. Dwan, a one-time Klondike prospector, was born in Prince Edward Island. He was serving his third council term and operated a draying business.

Funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday. Rev. Father Harrington officiating.

FEDERAL LOAN PLANS FAIL TO INTEREST HERE

Aberhart Turns a Cold Shoulder on Modified Loan Council

Terms of the modified Loan Council as suggested by Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Dominion Finance Minister, in the course of his recent budget speech, have so far failed to interest Premier William Aberhart and his stand on the Loan Council idea his not altered as a result of that pronouncement.

"I have not considered the terms of the modified loan council as the occasion has not arisen."

NO CONSIDERATION

The premier said that he was not giving any consideration to the Loan Council idea as it was proposed to take care of maturing issues in the refunding plans which are now being formulated and which were authorized in legislation passed at the last session of the house.

Provincial maturities this year total $4,404,000, of which $2,846,000 represents the debentures in default on April 1, less sinking fund, of $2,846,000; a maturing issue of $1,168,000 on November 1 next, and an issue of $450,000 University of Alberta on July 1.

The premier proposes that all these issues will be taken care of in the refunding plan.

Alberta commitments for this year total $41,000,000 but this includes $25,000,000 due the Dominion government, for which arrangements probably can be made to defer payment.

The original loan council plan was that if the council refused a loan that ended the matter. Under the modified terms, if the council refuses a loan, a province may go outside the country to raise the money, but will be permitted to raise it domestically, if it can.

HOWSON TELLS PARTIES REACH AN AGREEMENT

Judgment Reserved in Suit For Recovery of Edmonton Farm

Advising the parties to agree between themselves, Mr. Justice Howson, in supreme court Tuesday, reserved judgment in the suit of Mrs. Jennie K. Bolster against Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Dawediuk for judgment of some $8,000 owing on a $10,000 agreement of sale of a farm, possession of the lands and premises or alternatively that the plaintiff is entitled to a vendor's lien taking preference to the municipality's tax lien.

The farm in question, a half-section close to the city, was purchased by Dawediuk some 11 years ago for $14,400, on which a first payment of $1,200 and further small payments were made. In 1925 the plaintiff gave a quit claim for $10,000.

TRIED BUY BACK

The suit arise when Dawediuk allowed the municipality to take title for tax arrears and then tried to buy the farm back in his wife's name.

George B. O'Connor, K.C., is solicitor for the plaintiff. Dmytro Yanchar the defendant.

"Would you be willing to forego all other claims if you got the farm back?" His Lordship asked Mr. O'Connor.

"Certainly, My Lord," Mr. O'Connor replied.

"I am going to reserve judgment to Saturday and meantime I would advise you to reach an agreement between yourselves," the judge said.

INTIMATES DECISION

"I can tell you this much, however. The plaintiff will not be allowed to charge seven per cent interest for the first two years. He will be allowed five per cent.

"The defendant will not be given credit for $1,000 which he claims he paid.

"Even though the defendant is given time to make his further payments, he is going to be in the position of having to pay $2,000 more than the land is now worth. It would be better to wipe out all accounts and give the land back to the plaintiff."

Yoo Hoo, Skinny!!

The fishing season hereabouts opens May 16, and this young gentleman has, apparently, jumped the deadline. He looks perfectly contented, and just on the other side of him he has a tin of worms and a corn-cob pipe, on which he will puff as soon as the photographer goes away.

FINNY DELICACIES GO ON SPOT MAY 16

In Other Words, Friends, Fishing Season Opens Soon

By MANNY PRAGER

Siald burghers have gone daffy.

Eminent citizens whose private lives are ordinarily beyond reproach, appear definitely "pixilated" as they stumble along the main highways. They blunder into inoffensive persons without words of apology—their Chesterfieldian manners have gone phitt!

THEY'RE "PIXILATED"

They haunt sporting goods shops and mutter to themselves in the manner bemused prisoners. Their home life—up until now a paragon of genteel refinement—is but a spectre of happiness. Their wives and children, staunch to the last, huddle tearfully in corners while these gentlemen thumb catalogues and whisper mysteriously.

The "pixilated" names that drip from their tongues are "brown hackle," "red coachman," "Jock Scott," "black gnat," and such-like gibberish.

The mystery behind all this boorish behavior lies in the fact that the season for Dally Garden, rainbow and cutthroat trout opens May 16 in the Red Deer and North Saskatchewan rivers. Grayling and Rocky Mountain whitefish may also be lifted from the waters on that date.

OTHER WATERS JUNE 15

Fishing in other waters will not open until June 15.

Police are endeavoring to get in touch with the man who picked up Gertrude Collins and carried her into the house after she was struck by a hit-and-run driver at the corner of 110 avenue and 97 street about 11:10 a.m. April 3. Anyone knowing the identity of the man is asked to get in touch with police immediately.

The first hike of the season was held by the Alpine Club, Edmonton branch, when members tramped to Kakimo woods on Sunday. A series of hikes will be held this year. President Helen Burns announces. The next one will take place on Tuesday, May 10, at 3 p.m., when the bird sanctuary will be visited. Members will gather at 142 street and 102 avenue.

City-owned vacant land sales made by the city land department under the new cut-rate price plan totalled approximately $2,000 at noon Tuesday, according to Supt. John Paterson. The plan which reduces the list price on utility-served vacant property by 50 per cent has been in effect for a week. Regular list prices on land sold on this basis total about $4,000.

The city-wide clean-up campaign launched Monday by the city engineering department has been held up due to Tuesday's inclement weather. The campaign will last for a month.

Automobile accidents for the month of April, 1936, totalled 74, a check-up on police records revealed Tuesday. One person was killed and 13 injured. In April, 1935, there were 110 accidents, no one was killed, and nine were injured.

Reports from the Peace River territory indicate that there will be at least 15 per cent more land sown to wheat in the district. In many sections oats will be decreased by the same amount.

Field work in the Edmonton district is expected to be retarded for another week as a result of the heavy rain of Tuesday. Farmers cannot expect to do plowing under this period and it will make sowing of the crop at least as late as last year, which was a couple of weeks behind normal.

Permits issued by the city building department since the first of the month total $4,270, according to figures received from John Marliand, city architect and building inspector. Larger permits taken out recently include the Arctic Oil Co., frame and stucco addition to service station at 9605 82 avenue, $600, and L. G. Peppe, frame dwelling at 9115 88 avenue, $950.

GABY, NEW OIL OFFICIAL, HERE ON FIRST VISIT

Formerly Was Assistant to Beatty and Power Official

Tall, distinguished, hard-hatted Fred A. Gaby, here 24 days ago was assistant to the Canadian Pacific Railway's president, Sir Edward Beatty, came to Edmonton Tuesday morning in his new role of vice-president of the British American Oil Company.

With Vice-President Gaby from Toronto came Herbert H. Bronsdon, secretary of the B. A. Oil.

The oil chief moved like the C. P. trains with which he has recently been associated—he moved fast.

ON THE JUMP

From the train he hurried to the Macdonald, hastened down for a quick breakfast and was away to the parliament buildings with would-be interviewers chasing him through the rain.

The train came to an end when news hawks pounced on the quarry outside the office door of Attorney General John Hugill.

Vice President Gaby had nothing to say but said it in a nice way.

"I'm just a month old in the oil business," he said frankly, "and we're just getting straightened away."

The object of the western junket is to form an acquaintance with government officials and business leaders. During the morning the B.A. executives interviewed the attorney general, James J. Frawley, John W. McClung and Minister of Lands and Mines Ross.

NO COMMENT

Reminded that the Liberal government had lopped off the duty on gasoline with the introduction of the budget last week, and asked if such action would result in a lowering of gas prices to the consumer, Vice president Gaby laughed. "You know as much about that as I do."

Secretary Bronsdon was western manager of B.A. Oil, stationed at Winnipeg up to 1931 when he moved east to Toronto to take up the present post of controller.

Following the afternoon "get-acquainted" visit, the oil executives will continue west to Vancouver, the lone spot in Canada not yet invaded by British American.

Five Thefts On Police Blotter

Petty crimes captured the spotlight of police records Monday.

The meanest thieves were those who ransacked Dr. A. Allair's car while it was parked in front of his residence at 9946 112 street, between 99 and 100 avenue, stealing a "Life-time Baumanometer," an instrument for taking blood pressure, valued at $27.50. The doctor was to have used it on a call.

John Davidson, Niton, had clothes stolen from his car while it was parked near Eaton's warehouse on 104 avenue and 102 street, between 3 and 3:30 p.m. Monday. Isabel Krawchuk, 10373 97 street, reported several articles of clothing were stolen from her room.

City Street Foreman Jack Aitken told police that sidewalk planks on 129 avenue between 121 and 124 streets had been ripped up and taken away.

City Lot Sales Soar To $3,617

Sales of city-owned vacant lots under the new cut-rate schme which reduces the list price of lots by 50 per cent have been reported to $3,617 following disposal of another $1,725 worth of land Saturday, Superintendent John Paterson reports. These figures represent only half of the regular list prices.

Highest sale made Saturday was $1,000 paid for the southeast corner of 106A avenue and 101 street, where purchasers plan to construct a hatchery building. Other sales ranged from $1000 to $125, this in question being bought in the Hudson's Bay Reserve, Norwood, Eastwood and River Lot subdivisions.

GRADUATES IN ARTS AND SCIENCE

Two United Church Students Receive Bachelor Of Divinity Degrees

Resplendent in graduation gowns, 20 agricultural students of the University of Alberta, will mingle with representatives of other faculties May 15 in McDougall church at the annual convocation.

Tremendous cares were lifted from the shoulders of these "aggies" Tuesday morning when, after days of anxiety, final examination results were issued at the registrar's office.

MYSTERIES OVER

After four years of probing the mysteries of animal husbandry, crop rotation, clover culture and fertilizers the university 'rusties' were ready to celebrate the completion of their labors. It was reported, but not confirmed, that Dean E. A. Howes had ordered all prize livestock to be placed under double guard so that none of his pet bulls would be seen mingling with the traffic on Jasper avenue.

TWO MINISTERS

The two divinity students, entering the ministry of the United Church of Canada, to receive Bachelor of Divinity degrees, are Emanuel Henry, B.A., and Charles Dwight Powell, B.A.

NOTABLE FATHERS

It is notable that many of these graduands, setting out to be leaders in Canada's first ranking industry, are following in their fathers' footsteps. They are sons of farmers while others are sons of men who hold high posts in directing agricultural enterprise.

Donald Carlyle is the son of S. G. Carlyle, provincial live stock commissioner. Dr. Ward Jones' father is director of the agricultural division of the C.P.R. natural resources branch, resident at Calgary, while his position was formerly held by Wilfred Hutton's father.

Robert Gibson has been attached to the Beaverlodge experimental station and decided to qualify for his university degree.

CASH REGISTER CHIEF ON VISIT

Alfred E. McLean, expatriated westerner, who in 1911 placed the first string of cash registers in the James Ramsay department store and the Johnstone Walker establishment, came back to his native town Tuesday to announce the promotion to Winnipeg of Herbert C. Watson, Edmonton manager of the National Cash Register Company of Canada, Limited.

National Cash Register's manager-director, the company agent here in 1911, is still a member of the Edmonton Masonic Lodge, never having transferred his fraternal affiliations to the east, although he has been a Torontonian for the past 24 years.

MORE PROSPERITY

Like all eastern business heads, Mr. McLean brought news of returning prosperity, but the proof of the good times come-back was different from the usual.

"During the tough years our machines stood up," he explained. "But now since business has started to hum, the wear and tear on our cash register bells has been terrific and we are now faced with fat stacks of replacement orders."

NEW PLANT

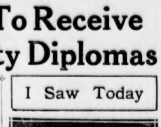

His company will move into its new Toronto plant this month supporting a payroll of 300 and spending $10,000 each week in wages.

Herbert C. Watson, the Edmonton manager who is going to Winnipeg as a technical expert in the western office, will be replaced here by Eddie O'Brien, said Managing Director McLean.

Police Court

Six-foot-tall Aldrie Charlesbois and pint-sized Baptiste St. Louis "mixed things" Saturday night in front of the St. Elmo hotel in such royal style that "spectators" from the police station half a block away, were attracted to the ringside.

Both battlers were arrested by Constables A. Howarth and O. Hansen, escorted over to the brig and, lacking coin for bail, cooled off in the jail house for three days.

Tuesday, the "disciuffers," hailed before Magistrate James Ritchie on charges of intoxication, had different stories to tell. St. Louis pleaded guilty and then detailed to the court the quantity, as best he could remember and quality of the liquor which he had consumed prior to the boxing display.

The story did little good to Charlesbois' "not guilty" plea, and despite the urgent arguments of defence counsel Eardley Jackson that his man was getting a "bum rap," fines of $20 and costs were passed around.

City Strikers Back At Work

Men engaged in working out provincial relief by means of beautifying Edmonton's parks and grounds continued their work on Tuesday following failure to bring off a strike in protest to the displacement of Bruens and Bolton from the city forestry service.

Unemployed for some time, Mr. Bruens had been acting as foreman for some time but no wages had been received by him.

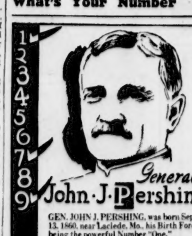

Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross declared, in commenting on the situation, that "we had some complaints, so we appointed another foreman and made him the sub-foreman. Neither is getting any wages. For one day only last Saturday, the department of public works sent a paid man to the work, but this was only temporary."

British House of Commons Revealed As Most Critical, Friendliest Yet Most Democratic Assembly In World

Sir James Sexton, Former Labor M.P., Publishes Autobiography

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 5—The British House of Commons is the most critical, the friendliest and yet the most democratic assembly of men in the whole world, declares Sir James Sexton, many years Labor member for St. Helens, Lancashire, in his autobiography published here.

Jimmy Sexton, as he is known to all his friends—he has not a known enemy—was one of less than a week at the age of nine. He went to sea as a stowaway and later organized the Dockers' Union. He entered parliament in 1918 and was defeated at the election in 1931 which produced the National government.

LITTLE SNOBBERY

"I can honestly say," writes Sexton, "that the only signs of snobbery and patronage extended towards me came from a very small section of the front bench in the then Labor governments, whilst amongst the many expressions of sympathy I received when, I lost my seat in very large proportion came from men who were, politically, my enemies, but personally, amongst my dearest friends."

Jimmy Sexton's charity towards all men does not prohibit some revelations in his remarks on Ramsay MacDonald. When the latter came back to parliament in 1922 after four years' absence, J. R. Clynes had to sacrifice to him the chairmanship of the Labor party.

"Then," declares Sexton, "we saw the beginning in MacDonald of that inordinate sense of his own indispensability which, if it did not entirely destroy the work to which so many of us had devoted our lives, certainly delayed its progress for a decade."

Sexton is surprised that MacDonald and Philip Snowden managed to work together for so long, considering the dissimilarity of their character.

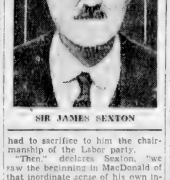

"MacDonald was vague and evasive on all critical issues. Important engagements turned up with remarkable frequency when awkward topics were forward, and even when he was present he always seemed content to rely upon that his ambition was concentrated upon his own political career."

Writing of the fall of the second Labor government Sexton remarks:

MOSTLY AMATEURS

"I for one do not see how its course could have run otherwise with James Ramsay MacDonald at its head, relying upon men who, with a few brilliant exceptions, were amateurs and novices in the work of government and were opposed by men descended from families who had for generations been accustomed to rule the country, and by others whose vested interests and natural instincts made them bitter enemies of every fundamental of the Labor party's policy, unlikely now to come within measurable distance of adopted for perhaps a score of years."

ITALIANS TO SETTLE LAND IN AFRIC ZONE

Near Half Million Soldiers To Colonize Ethiopian Acreage

ROME, May 5—At least 400,000 of the 500,000 Italian soldiers and workmen in Africa will remain there as settlers, Premier Mussolini indicated today in a speech to rural peasants. After praising the land he declared: "At least 400,000 of the 500,000 men in the centre of Africa are peasants who, while marching and fighting, do not forget the land.

"They had almost the same area, contrast it with Italy, and they foresee the possibility of carving there hundreds of related lands for valorous and fecund families of the Italian race."

Premier Mussolini was dressed in the green uniform of a corporal of the Fascist militia.

DUCE PAYS TRIBUTE

He paid high tribute to peasant fighting in Africa, saying: "They have never protested when rations were late or when it was necessary to give out drug by days at a temperature of 50 degrees centigrade. (122 degrees Fahrenheit). Only the Italian race and none other could have supported this."

GENEVA, May 5.—Members of the League of Nations generally interpreted Saturday night that Premier Mussolini would put a puppet emperor upon the throne of Ethiopia and quickly make peace treaty upon his own terms.

REST IN COLONIES

From this it was deduced that Italy would continue to occupy the independent Amharic state, though probably under Italian supervision. Italy will continue to colonize the country, by others whose vested interests and natural instincts made them bitter enemies of every fundamental of the Labor party's policy, unlikely now to come within measurable distance of adopted for perhaps a score of years."

1936 Pulitzer Drama Prize Is Awarded To Robert E. Sherwood

Prize Committee Differs With New York Drama Critics On Choice Of "Idiot's Delight."

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Pulitzer prize committee differed with New York drama critics again last night as preferring Robert E. Sherwood's "Idiot's Delight" to Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset."

The Sherwood anti-war play, now running with a New York Theatre Guild cast headed by Lynn Fontaine and Alfred Lunt, was selected by the Pulitzer committee to receive its 1936 prize for the best drama by an American author presented during the current season.

HAVE DISAGREED

The drama critics, who in past years have disagreed with the Pulitzer awards and after last year's announcement decided to do their own picking, unanimously had announced Anderson play as their choice.

The prize for the most distinguished novel published during 1935 by an American author was awarded to "Honey, in the Horn" by Harold L. Davis.

OTHER AWARDS

Other awards in letters were:

History—"The constitutional history of the United States," by Andrew Cunningham McLaughlin.

JOURNALISM PRIZES

The five prizes in journalism were as follows:—

For the most distinguished and meritorious public service, a gold medal valued at $500, to the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Gazette, for its crusade against corruption and misgovernment "in the State of Iowa."

For distinguished service as a foreign correspondent, a cash prize of $500 awarded posthumously to Will Bardee, of the Chicago Tribune for his reports of the war in Ethiopia.

For distinguished editorial writing there were two awards, carrying cash prizes of $500 each: To Felix Morley, editor of the Washington Post, and to George B. Parker, editor-in-chief of Scripps-Howard newspapers.

For a distinguished example of a reporter's work, $500 in cash to Lauren D. Lyman of the New York Times, for his exclusive story revealing that the Lindbergh family was leaving the United States to live in England.

There was no award this year for cartoonists work, which is one of the five classifications in which awards are made annually.

JAPAN MADE BAD MISTAKE

MONTREAL, May 5—Japan made a serious mistake in going into Manchuria the way she did, Dr. Toyohito Kagawa said Monday in an address here before leaving for Ottawa.

The Japanese visitor said his country was faced with the problem of managing a population with a huge proportion of Chinese in the past 35 years 22,000,000 Chinese have migrated into Manchuria, while the Japanese have remained in their own country, he said.

Chinese boycott of Japanese goods and innumerable trade barriers of other countries were a problem to Japan in her search for markets, Dr. Kagawa said, but the country's reserve funds and self-sufficiency have kept her from depression.

VISCOUNT WILLINGDON COMPLETES 23 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE CROWN

LONDON, May 5—The Earl of Willingdon landed at Tilbury Monday from India, where he relinquished the office of viceroy April 18, completing 23 years of almost uninterrupted service to the crown.

The Willingdons were greeted at the docks with many signs of ceremonious respect and even more marked tokens of cordiality. Tae King was represented by the Earl of Dunmore, lord-in-waiting. Also present were the Marquess of Zetland, secretary for India, and H. A. Butler, parliamentary under-secretary to the India office, who handed the former viceroy a letter of greeting from Prime Minister Baldwin

Willingdon

Today Lord Willingdon will be the guest at dinner of the London chamber of commerce. Lady Willingdon dining with the Lady Mayoress of London. It is expected Lord Willingdon will be offered the honorary freedom of Cinque Ports, a position of considerable dignity, carrying comfortable emoluments and resident at Dover Castle. The late Marquess of Reading was the last holder.

HAS SORE THROAT

Lord Willingdon was suffering from a sore throat on his arrival. His physicians advised him not to make an intended statement to the press. He looked well, however, shook hands vigorously and posed for photographs.

Lady Willingdon told interviewers her husband was "now going on nicely."

Captain Harrison, commander of the Strathmore, said Lord Willingdon had been abed five days with a temperature during Suez.

TOOK VICEROY OUT

Captain Harrison added he was glad to have had the opportunity of taking out the new Viceroy, the Marquess of Linlithgow, and bringing home another, Lord Willingdon. Lord Willingdon went to India in 1930 after a five-year term as Governor General of Canada. He was Governor of Bombay, 1913-19, Governor Madras 1919-24, and before going to Canada in 1926, was chairman of the home indemnity commission which visited China.

MAGILL SEEKS DRINK WATER THEN HE DIES

identified each day and night, but as time went on our stone became increasingly more uncomfortable and the incessant drip of water in the mine, generally, and in particular on me, whereas it was because of extreme annoyance. It seemed impossible to get oneself in any position without the water exposed to the large drops of water falling from the roof.

Alf would make regular trips to the opening of the landing shaft and call down the shaft a block of wood or rock, always coming back with the report that he could not hear a splash. At times he pounded the rock on the roof, but he was complaining more and more of the instability in his legs. Both Magill and Alf complained of pain around their sternums and knees.

In this way the days passed until Saturday, or what we thought was Saturday. To my surprise, I myself seemed to be in excellent physical condition, apart from my indigestion and numbness in the feet. My throat was quite clear, and although I suffered to wet and cold for almost a week, and having tremendous spells at very frequent intervals, I found I was in first class shape.

COMPLAINED OF STOMACH PAIN

Alf, apart from his numbness and foot pains, was in good shape also. Neither of us had a cough. Magill, however, did not appear to be so rugged and suddenly, in the middle of Saturday afternoon, he sat up quiet and cried to me that he had a dreadful pain in his stomach. It was excruciating.

Passing my arm around him I felt his abdomen, and it was absolutely rigid. I could make nothing of the distension, but we continued to lie all of us on our left sides. I had my arm around Magill, in this way trying to control and restrain him. About this time we thought it advisable, on account of the falling rock, to leave our place and go into the face of the east cross-cut—the rocks were falling from the blasting.

We made a wretched trip through this badly choked passage and spent a few hours at this position. The blasting having come to an end, we made our way back to the landing stage. By this time it had become quite apparent to me that Magill had pneumonia in his left lung. His pulse was almost twice as fast as mine and his breathing was also twice as fast as mine.

The mine was full of noises, but one seemed to stand out from the other. It seemed to be a boring sound, a sound as if a rotary instrument was working. We discussed this but had no explanation for it.

RED LIGHT BURSTS FORTH

Presently a red light burst forth in the shaft just below our level, and there was no difficulty in seeing that there was some smoke there was an intense red glow which lighted the whole place. We immediately thought that fire had started, perhaps from some dynamite.

All sprang up and went over to the shaft. We passed him a cup of water with which to attempt to deluge the fire. He accomplished this. We then discussed the significance of the fire, but could attribute no reasonable explanation.

We were then in fire about six or eight hours of peculiar occurrences. The compressed air was turned on to one of the pipes and it was blown for a long period of time. We thought it was an endeavor of the engineering force to get an our pump working, and we took heart to the extent that we thought the work above was progressing and that they had hopes of reaching us. At least we took it to mean that they knew we were alive.

After the compressed air had been blown for a period, a whistle was blown. Following another discussion of this phenomenon we decided that they were in some fashion trying to signal us, and with the return to the beating of the pipes we presently heard a voice shout "Hello."

We went to the landing stage, Alf got down the ladder and found that the voice was coming from an opening where the fire had made two appearances, and through this opening, which proved to be the diamond drill opening made to penetrate to the space where we lay, we could converse directly with the people above.

TELLS OF MAGILL DEATH

Through this I was able almost immediately to speak to my wife, Mrs. Magill called her husband, but he was too weak to move from where he lay. We learned of the activity on the surface and were heartened and thought we would be rescued.

We asked for candles and food. A rubber tube was passed down in fact an ordinary garden hose. This had some candles, matches wrapped in cellophane. Some small vials containing chocolate and what not, was passed down.

Alf got soaking wet in getting these supplies from the drill hole. He passed them to me and I carried them up the ladder. We dragged the hose over to where we lay. We lighted our candles and the situation looked very much improved. We tried the plug which was passed down the hose, but neither Magill nor I was able to keep it down. Alf, I think, got some benefit from it. We were extravagant with our candles for the next few hours, and during this time Magill was getting very much worse.

In another ten hours he had an extremely high fever, with very labored breathing.

He sat up, demanding a drink of water which was given to him. He fell back and died in a few minutes.

Alf did not get the significance of this until I told him Magill was dead, and I was again filled with admiration for Alf—his ability to meet dreadful situations gave me the greatest confidence.

HOSE CUT OFF COMMUNICATION

We stayed as we were until an interval had passed, sufficiently long to make sure that Magill was actually dead. We then lighted our candles and by herculean efforts moved the body into the north cut, where we placed it reverently on a board.

We then returned to our place of rest, and slept for a considerable period. When I awakened and talked with Alf, we tried to get them to take the hose out of the opening.

While they gave us food, which personally was of no use to me, and little more to Alf, it cut off communication, and we could not hear what was shouted down the hole. We therefore had the tube removed and presently we got instruction that they were dropping a telephone down to us and to get it. The telephone was dropped down to us in a long iron tube.

Alf got down the ladder, crawled over the ore chute, got this piece of iron, passed it back to me and we carried it up on the platform and to our place of refuge. At the same time they sent us down a dozen candles.

We lighted our candles and unpacked the telephone—which was very cunningly and cleverly done up in the iron tubing, protected by tape. Having got our hands as dry as possible we undid the apparatus and found a little microphone, no larger than an index finger. Removing a finger stall, one spoke into the microphone, and so it had established an accurate and definite communication with the surface.

This I consider, was the one feature which allowed us to consider any further stay with equanimity.

HANDS WERE NUMBED

Alf found that his brother-in-law was on the surface. I found I could speak to Mrs. Robertson and Charlie Ivey. Through this telephone we were able to ask questions, which were answered by a man above, who shouted "No" if for "No," and "Yes, yes," if for "Yes." The development of the telephone was only half complete, but we knew it. On several occasions the crew on the surface tried to get us to go to the diamond drill hole to get other things, one of which we subsequently learned was the other part of the telephone, which would allow of a two-way conversation.

I think that both Alf and I had determined by this time that for no reason whatsoever would we again make the attempt of the ladder, as the danger was altogether too great for us in our weakened and clumsy condition. From the beginning we all had difficulty with our hands.

They were continuously wet. The skin of the palms was roughened like crocodile skin. Our hands were cut and bruised so that it made it exceedingly difficult for us to use them. After the telephone came down, the situation was so much improved and when aid was promised us so shortly it appeared we would be able to carry on without any drastic change.

Alf's feet had continued to increase in pain and numbness. He was forced to make the effort of cutting open his boots. As a matter of fact, he took each off and threw away a pair of socks, and we applied his boots. In addition to the difficulty, for a period of 48 or 56 hours he experienced agonizing joint pains in one hip and then the other. They were such as to make it almost impossible for him to lie in one position more than 10 or 15 minutes.

Having had pains of similar nature I was able to do nothing more than sympathize with him.

I could only encourage him they would disappear, as they actually did, and I congratulate myself on what a stout companion I had.

(In tomorrow's chapter, Dr. Robertson's story progresses to the "dream stage," the period wherein the writer and his heroic companion would done off and in fitful dreams imagine themselves in an environment of warmth, light, luxury. Moreover the faint sounds of laboring rescuers were at once so near and far. How, when would this nightmare end?)

Mrs. P. Leche of Calgary says:
"I've never felt so safe and contented. A new set of Goodyears give me absolute control of my car."

Mr. J. P. Gilmour of Montreal says:
"I don't worry about blow-outs. I ride on Goodyears, and have fun."

Any worry you may have had about blow-outs or skidding will be forgotten like children forget fear when you ride on new, safe Goodyears. You can actually feel at brake and throttle extra road-grip, the extra responsiveness, power and control these safest of all tires give your car. Then you take it for granted —as experienced Goodyear users do.

You have a safe car on safe tires—leave your cares behind. Use your car to the full—for enjoyment and profit. Call upon friends, picnic in favourite haunts, discover a marvellous new world as you escape in your car from the work-a-day world, beyond the limits of city bye landscapes and fine adventure.

New, safe Goodyear Tires complement the safety features that carmakers build into new models. If your present car happened to be equipped with tires other than Goodyears, and you now need new tires, get new, safe Goodyears now and leave your cares behind.

You'll naturally want the tires that make your car safest and most up-to-date—Goodyears.

PROOF

PROOF of Long Mileage—BEFORE YOU BUY! Your Goodyear dealer will show you "footprints" of actual tires on cars owned near you, which still retain safe traction after very long mileage. These are substantial for you the two extra Goodyear qualities which the dealer will demonstrate to you—1. That Supertwist Cords retain their "life" much longer than ordinary cords — and — 2. That the All-Weather diamond tread usually resists skidding even on smooth wet surfaces.

OTTAWA GRID OFFICIALS ABSOLVED

DEAKIN DECLARES

Trail Baseball Team Has Lines Out For Carl Loblick

NIGHBOR'S OFFER

Soccer Body Selects Its Officials to Guide Teams

THE Trail Baseball Club, seeking pitching talent, contemplates possible negotiations for the services of Carl Loblick, formerly of Spruce Grove and a junior pitching star in local baseball for the past few years.

Carl, a younger brother to Herman Loblick, known in ball circles as the "Spruce Grove Agrarian," was one of the leading junior league righthanders, playing for the Grits last year and performing in several round-I ball tournaments. The younger Loblick, if, and he often is "right" can show good form with a fast ball and one which has a lot of what it takes to deceive the watchful eye of the batsman. While the calibre of baseball at Trail is unknown here, it would, however, be a safe bet to make that Carl could pitch his way to triumphs, and make the grade upon the sandlots of the B.C. town.

Edmonton is holding up organization of a proposed four or five-team league in Northern Alberta," state dispatches from Wetaskiwin, which team, along with Dunvuk, is ready to take to the field. It was also suggested, according to the local newspaper, that the Edmonton team or teams be left out in favor of either or both Red Deer and Stettler and, if loose teams are taken into the fold, then the hardy Edmonton fans would be dropped and the league comprised of Red Deer, Dunvuk, Wetaskiwin and Stettler.

While the statement was made by a Wetaskiwin correspondent, it is quite likely it will ring true. Little interest is being shown by local officials, fans or players, especially in regard to the proposed inter-town loop. Whatever interest taken by those connected with baseball here, and there are few, is shown by a group of last year's Big Four and junior team sponsors and officials. The first spark of real interest is expected to be fanned into something of a glow tonight when the junior officials meet for an organization meeting. Then on Wednesday there is a meeting of the newly proposed "Amateramate Baseball League." Just what that means is not quite clear as yet.

One of the greatest hockey players of all time, Frank Boucher, may take to fooling on fields as usual when next season rolls around. The reports have it that Nicholas' starriest player on Ottawa's great Senator squad, will go to England next year and will not be piloting Buffalo Bisons of the International League. If Oughton signs to coach hockey in England, and it would not be surprising, then sponsors of the game among the Britons are really smartening up by taking some of the best sporting material this side of the water.

Whipping amateur wrestlers into shape is no pleasing sport, and you can take Promoter Mike Cauchert's word for it. Always a hard worker for the amateur wrestling cause, Promoter Mike, who on Friday night at the Empire brings back the "wrestle royal", has been drilling a large squad of amateurs in preping for elimination trials. However,

Rassle Royal Tough Affair This Friday

Popularity of Big Contest Prompts Renewal of Five-men Battle

Pressed by demands of local fans and prompted by the wide popularity of the recent wrestle royal staged at the Empire, Promoter Mike Cutcher has again lined up a five-man battle for the benefit of local grappling fans.

This particular mode of wrestling, entirely new to Edmonton's grappling fandom "till one was staged here a few weeks ago, went over big and had 'em sitting in the aisles. Folks are still talking about it around town and looking forward with expectancy to next Friday's card.

The five men to be in the ring this time and gunning for each other and everybody will include Slim Cummings, the local hero of the last one, Klim Klucek and Tex Hager, "the answer to the Edmonton girls' prayer". Besides these two, Promoter Mike is endeavoring to secure Hugh "Wiskers" Adams and Mickey McGuire, as fourth and fifth man in the ring. If such be the lineup, patrons will be assured of the best kind of action in this super-action wrestling fest. It'll be a grand night for the lovers of the squirm game.

In addition to the wrestle royal two other bouts will be offered tonight. The semi-windup will have Alex Boytrun of Leduc and Slats Babiak of Dorothy displaying their wares. Both of them are accomplished adepts of the wrestling art and should provide a smart bout.

Efforts are also being made to match Gil Rose with someone for the opening bout and this will round out what will be a real night of action.

Maurice Debleik will be back in his wrestling duties with another belt to offer him handle the "wrestle royal."

Mike has his boys ready for this evening's amateur bouts at the Empire, but it finds a lot of punishment. At least it appeared so, for Mike has been calling around every evening with several scars showing upon his genial features. However, he likes it and the boys benefit by his training so that makes the score even.

Operatives inform me that Bill Montgomery, former defence player with Ira Stuart's Superiors, perennial Edmonton senior hockey champions, plans to take up tennis seriously this summer. Bill, who made quite a name for himself in hockey circles with the "Scoops" and with University of Alberta in his college days, is a mean wielder of the racket. He was a member of the University of Alberta intercollegiate tennis team in 1930 and 1931 and has several trophies to show for his prowess. He will likely line up with the Carneau Tennis Club this season.

Now For Olympic Games

After a season of stirring and successful competition in which they won the eastern Canada basketball championship, Windsor Fords went on to capture the Dominion crown by defeating Victoria Dominoes, defending champs, three straight games. The powerful Windsor basketeers took the first game 47-30, edged out a 26-25 victory in the second and came back strong to win the third game Saturday 40-23. The champs have a trip to the summer Olympic games waiting in the offing for them. Border City basketeers surround Manager Gordon Fuller, whose face decorates the centre of the ball. Left to right around the circle they are: Jimmy Stewart, Norm Dawson, Ed Dawson, Julius Goldman, Ian Allison, Gordie Aitchenson, "Toots" Meretsky and "Red" Wiseman.

Eleven Bouts Offered Fans In Northern Alberta Eliminations

Following an eight day postponement to avoid conflicting with the final Grad game, the amateur matmen hold their try-outs for northern district honors tonight at the Empire Theatre. Eighteen husky athletes will be given a chance to make the team that will go to the finals in Calgary on May 14 and 15.

There will be 11 big bouts every one with the real do or die action. Still unmatched, Gordon Garry will take on one of the classes above his weight to give the local committee a chance to look him over. It is likely that Mack Nicholas will oppose Garry. Announcer Doug Kerr will start hostilities at 8:30 with these in charge of the bouts: Referees, Roy Haliburton and Dr. L. R. Dodds; judges, A. A. Dower and A. J. Smith; timekeepers, Chief A. G. Shute and Sid Bowcott; medical examiner, Dr. Frank W. Crang.

Here is the revised draw:

REDS TRIUMPH BY 1-0 SCORE OVER GIANTS

Hubbell's Four-hit Game Turned Into Defeat In Last Inning

CINCINNATI, May 5—Carl Hubbell pitched four-hit ball yesterday but the New York Giants dropped their fourth game in five western starts as the Cincinnati Reds put over the only run of the game in the ninth for a 1-0 victory.

The only extra base blow off the Giants' southpaw ace was Kiki Cuyler's triple to open the ninth, and it spelled Hubbell's downfall. He disposed of the next batter and purposely passed Babe Herman and Ernie Lombardi to load the bases.

With the Giants' outfield pulled in Sammy Byrd sent a fly to Ott and the fleet Cuyler slid into the plate under Gus Mancuso with the deciding run.

Roy Berry Trouble Is Smoothed Away By Amateur Union

Blanket Isolation Order Is Lifted and Officers Regain Good Standing With Amateur Body Again.

OTTAWA, May 5—R. George Pushman, president of the Eastern Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, announced here last night that he had been advised by W. A. Fry, president of the A.A.U. of C., that officers of the Ottawa rugby football club, of the I.R.F.U., had been restored to good standing. Pushman's announcement came after he had been in long distance telephone communication with Mr. Fry at Dunnville, Ont.

A blanket isolation order was issued by President Fry against the Ottawa Rough Riders' officials last fall, following the controversy which arose over the alleged playing of Bohn Hilliard with the local Big Four team under the name of Roy Berry. Evidence since submitted absolved the club official.

DAMAGING CHARGES

The Eastern Ontario branch of the A.A.U. of C. took the original action following charges made at the conclusion of the Big Four schedule last fall, that Roy Berry, playing on the Ottawa backfield, was Bohn Hilliard, former University of Texas footballer and later a professional baseball player.

Evidence was submitted to this effect, but local club officials denied any knowledge of the alleged impersonation.

Assigned the task of reporting on the circumstances, officials of the Ottawa branch communicated with the football club, requesting a submission of facts in the case. When this order was not complied with, the branch so reported to the A. A. U. of C. president, who issued an order that any athletes or officials connected in any way in sport with officials of the Ottawa Club would be suspended by the A. A. U. of C.

PUT ON OUTSIDE

This took the form of a blanket isolation order, naming the Football Club officers on the outside. As a result of the action, James P. McCaffery surrendered his position as manager of the Ottawa Senators, in the senior group of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

Football club officials proceeded to collect data on the disputed question, in proof of the contention that they were in ignorance of any impersonation by the player using the name of Roy Berry. They showed that their communications with Berry had been carried on in good faith and that the player in question had produced credentials which would leave no doubt that Berry was his real name.

Thirteen Horses In Chester Race

CHESTER, England, May 5—Thirteen horses are listed as probable starters in the Chester Cup stakes, to be run here May 6. The Chester Cup is over a course of two miles, two furlongs and 77 yards.

Probable starters, with owners and jockeys in that order, are: Crawley Wood, J. E. Cottrell, Lane; Jesmond Dene, Lady Fitzwilliam, Steve Donoghue; Dear Relation, Sir Alfred Butt, E. Smith; Guiscard, Lord Derby, Perriman; Doreen June, Sir Abe Bailey, Weston; Jack Tar, Lady Muttall, Gordon Richards; Master M. H. Benson, Beary; Pry Second, H. W. W. Simms, Humphrey Foster; Bright Armour, Mrs. Livingstone; Lynch; Cho-Sen, Mrs. Ahern, Mitchell.

No jockeys have been named for Blue Girl, Rubin Wood and Moving Picture.

Cleveland Indians got to the former Montreal star for six runs in the last four innings and a 6-3 win over Washington.

A one-time Cleveland hurler, Appleton held the tribe scoreless for five innings until the visitors began to hit his offerings.

BRITISH CONSOLS TIE TORIES 6-6

In their first exhibition softball game of the year the Junior British Consols held the Young Tories to a 6-6 draw.

Despite the fact that this was the first game of the year, very few errors were made, all runs being of the well-earned type. Craig and Cuddy handled the hurling assignment for Consols, while Stevenson and Reid pitched equally well for the Tories.

The next exhibition game between these two teams will be held next Sunday morning at 10:30 on Gyro Park grounds.

The British Consols will hold a practice at Victoria High School tonight at 6:30 o'clock. All members are requested to attend.

LAWN BOWLING

The semi-annual meeting of the club with R. Glen presiding, was held recently at which arrangements were completed for the activities of the ensuing season.

Skips appointed were as follows: W. Trussell, W. M. Seller, G. Wanless, H. E. Roberts, R. Glen, T. S. Davies, A. A. Campbell, G. McIlvar, T. Hunt, F. R. Munshaw, C. Gauld, M. M. O'Brien, F. Holts, J. Bryson.

It was considered inopportune to at this time make any change in the membership fee, and it was therefore left at the nominal figure of last year.

The teams are rapidly nearing completion—the clubs are, however, in a position to take care of a large number and all who may wish to bowl at the Garneau club, whether bowlers or non-bowlers are urgently requested to get in touch with the secretary at 2649 without delay.

Full facilities will be afforded non-bowlers to learn the rudiments of the game.

Ali Baba Given Chance With Dick Shikat In Title Go

McLARNIN READY

Henry Picard on Spot As Experts Pick Him To Win

The mysterious Mr. Harry Ezikian—Ali Baba to you—recognized here and there as the heavyweight wrestling champion, will get his chance tonight to make it more or less unanimous.

The "Terrible Turk," who came from Armenia via the United States navy, to bounce the title from the head of the Doughty Dick Shikat in Detroit 10 day ago, meets the German in a return bout in Madison Square Garden.

The New York State Athletic Commission says the winner will be the champ in its book. Shikat is a top heavy favorite to flop Ali, regain his title and be matched with the winner of tonight's finish affair between the veteran Strangler Lewis and Hans Steinke, also scheduled in New York.

Jimmy McLarnin is in such tip-top shape for his 10-rounder with Tony Canzoneri in the Garden Friday night his handlers refused to let him box Monday and confine the Vancouver Celt to limbering up exercises.

"He's ready to go into the ring now" said Manager Pop Foster. "Can't take a chance of having him go stale."

Canzoneri, meanwhile whaled away at four sparring partners on his farm in upstate New York. McLarnin expects to weigh in at 144, which will give him a nine-pound weight advantage over the lightweight king. The odds now favor McLarnin at 8 to 5. Max Schmeling and Joe Louis, who clash in the summer season's first heavyweight brawl in the Yankee stadium, June 18, took things easy at Lake Napanoch, and Lafayetteville, N.Y., getting ready for hard work to come later. Schmeling's camp will be formally opened Friday, Louis goes to Lakewood, N.J., May 15 to begin boxing.

TOM GREEN AGAIN HEADS FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION

Elected President For Coming Season At Council Meeting

Tom Fawcus Re-elected Secretary-treasurer Enthusiastic Meet

The adjourned annual general meeting of the Edmonton and District Football Association was held in the Motor Car Supply building last night. It proved to be one of the most enthusiastic held to date and if all the projects put forward for the coming season are carried out, soccer is due for another boost which will put it once more into the limelight of active sports in the city.

Four teams were represented at the meeting and will be in operation this season, with prospect of more to be organised—a healthy aspect in itself.

Grounds were talked over and the feeling was expressed that Diamond Park could again be utilized, although there would be no enclosure.

CONSOLIDATE POSITION

It was decided to again affiliate with the A.F.A., while efforts would be made to consolidate the position of the Council with the other northern points of the province, to hold the position of Edmonton with the D.F.A.

The auditor's report was presented by the secretary, showing the Association to be in a favorable financial position.

The election of officers was the most important item on the program and a strong executive was elected to govern the game for the coming season. Tom Green was re-elected for another year as president, while Thos. H. Fawcus was elected again fill duties of the secretary-treasurer. The full list of officers follows:

NEW EXECUTIVE

Honorary president, Hon. William Aberhart. Honorary vice-presidents: His Worship Mayor Joseph A. Clarke, J. K. Hill, J. H. Wildman, A. McGregor and Dr. Morrish. President, Tom Green; vice-president, W. J. Hill; secretary-treasurer, Thos. H. Fawcus. Council members: Col. T. C. Sims, J. McEwan, W. Moffett, W. Long, Auditors: Frank Green, C. M. Small.

The first meeting of the newly-formed Council is to be held in the Motor Car Supply building on Friday at 8 o'clock at which entries will be received from the clubs and the various leagues formed.

Managers and secretaries of football clubs are reminded to get their entries in for the coming season to Tom Fawcus, 10058 94 street prior to Friday's meeting, in order to give the Council time to discuss grounds and referees to get the games started at the earliest possible date.

When summoned for being in arrears with his taxes, a man in Liverpool, Eng., stated that his only asset was a lion.

EDMONTON GUN SEASON OPENS

Official weekly shoots start Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Competition this year for silver spoons and cups promises to be exceptionally keen.

Many new members are signing up and the club membership will likely go over the hundred mark before the close of the season. The introduction of skeet shooting will likely appeal to many and will be shot Wednesday afternoon.

The club grounds on the old rifle range near the Dawson mine are ideally situated, being close in, and is one of Edmonton's beauty spots much favored by picnickers. The club extends a hearty invitation to any who like to come and watch this sport.

All members of Hooper's Drug softball team are requested to turn out to practice at 6.30 Tuesday evening at the South Side Athletic field. Owing to inclement weather early season training has been delayed. It is therefore imperative that a full attendance is made for this practice. Any softball players who would like a try-out for this intermediate team should be on hand Tuesday evening or otherwise telephone Chas. W. Rendall at Hooper's Drug store, phone 32405.

WHITE HOPE?

ERIC CRYDERMAN

Lightest of the entries on Toronto's second White Hope tournament, Eric Cryderman of Sutton, Ont., emerged victor of the 23rd and final bout by a decision over Joe Salino, Toronto. Cryderman was eliminated from the first tournament by Phil Munro, the ultimate winner, a veteran amateur boxer. He won $200 prize plus a chance to compete in further tournamenta sponsored by Jack Dempsey. His victory came after two knockout victories and two decisions.

Toronto Swims

TORONTO, May 5—Kay Reynolds, 16-year-old Dolphinet, lived up to predictions Saturday night when she established a new record in the 220-yard senior women's breast stroke in a swimming meet that saw three Canadian records broken.

The young aquatic star was given stiff competition by Ena Erskine, former record-holder, to churn the distance in 3 minutes 31 seconds. The old record was 3:38 2-5.

Jed Clawson clipped four seconds from the old record to negotiate the 220-yard senior men's breast stroke in 2:34 2-5. The Dolphinet junior girls 800-yard relay broke the third record with no other team to beat. The quartette, M. Stone, M. McKinney, G. Cameron and E. Munro, set the new record of 10:54 2-5.

TRACK-LESS WONDERS

WANT SEASON SHORTENED

LONDON.—Tottenham Hotspurs, famous English soccer club, believes the league season extends too far into the spring. At the next meeting of football league clubs the Spurs will put forward a proposal to start and finish the schedule a week earlier than at present. In recent years the season has ended on the first Saturday in May.

HOLLIDAY'S CENTURY

LONDON. — J. Holliday, clever Brentford inside forward, did more than the hat-trick when he scored three goals in as many minutes for the first division club against Everton on Easter Monday. He completed 100 goals as a Brentford player and gave the team its ninth successive English league victory.

CREATES NEW RECORD

GREAT GOLF

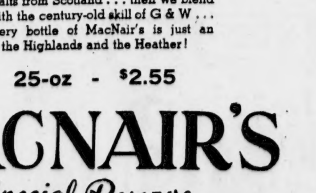

By ART KRENZ

Many golfers have the wrong idea about the right elbow. It never should be clamped tightly against the ribs or a flat swing will result; neither should it be allowed to wander too far from the side, for this error shuts the face of the club and swinging from the inside is impossible.

Let the right arm be relaxed in the swing until just before impact, when it straightens and gives power to the stroke.

Today's Markets

At Toronto—Mines

TORONTO, May 5.—The Toronto mining market blossomed out with a 2,000,000-share trade today, the first of that size since the middle of February. The heavy turnover followed a buying wave in low-priced gold shares with Hard Rock the feature.

Hard Rock trading 200,000 shares closed off about 8 cents at 1.62 after reaching 1.80.

Stepping along behind were Argosy, Howey, Manitoba-Eastern and Clericy. Argosy sold up to 1.50 for a gain of 10 cents and Howey advanced to 91, up 33 cents. Profit-taking trimmed prices slightly.

The close was up 3 to 5 cents for Sylvanite, Chibougamau, McKenzie, Gunnar and Reno and Quebec mining gained about 20 cents. Losses of 10 to 12 cents were posted for Central Patricia and San Antonio and Pamour was off 10 cents.

Prices were a little stiffer for Ventures and Falconbridge. Texas-Canadian lost about 5 cents.

Toronto—Industrials

TORONTO, May 5.—Industrial share listings of the Toronto Exchange registered a narrow advance today without working up much commotion in the matter of trading. Volume remained under the 35,000-share mark.

Nickel's price advance was limited to about half a point. Consolidated Smelters registered a fractional gain.

Oils held the spotlight with gains of ½ to ¾ and Brazilian and C.P.R. displayed moderate strength.

Lake of the Woods and Laura Secord each advanced more than a point. Massey-Harris Pfd., Abitibi Pfd., and Bruck Silk were well ahead for the day.

At Montreal

MONTREAL, May 5.—Volume tapered off during the final hour on Montreal Stock Exchange today but stocks held early gains.

Nickel, active leader, finished with a ½-point gain at 46 while Smelters closed even at 56¼. Noranda added ⅛ and Hollinger remained stationary.

Paper assumed leadership later with gains of a point or more.

O'Brien Gold touched an all-time high of 99 cents before easing to 95, up 12 cents net.

At New York

NEW YORK, May 5.—Industrial specialties led a wide recovery in today's stock market with general gains ranging from fractions to 3 points or more.

The upturn, while comparatively dull, was attributed partly to short covering based on technical factors involved in the sharp declines of the past 10 days. The close was firm. Transfers were around 1,300,000 shares.

BROOMHALL

CHICAGO, May 5.—North American shipments of wheat and flour were much larger last week, totalling 6,210,000 bushels, which was the largest weekly total since Dec., 1933. Of this Canadian Atlantic ports furnished 3,824,000 compared with only 725,000 during the corresponding week last year. Canadian Pacific 1,712,000 vs. 1,206,000, while other North American ports cleared only 753,000 against 787,000 last year. Quantities on passage to Europe increased about 2,000,000 bushels and are now 3,000,000 larger than last year at this time.

Arrivals in the U. K. were much smaller during the week just ended but this was partially offset by larger receipts at continental ports, particularly Belgium which reported arrivals of 1,520,000 bushels. No important export business was reported in the U.K. or New York yesterday and the total worked was believed to have been only moderate. London reported sales of No. 1 Manitobas Vancouver afloat 30s 1½d and No. 4 also afloat at 27s 10½d (93¾ and 86⅝ cents per bushel respectively).

WHEAT PRICES FIRM AGAIN

WINNIPEG, May 5—Upheld by sustained foreign demand for Canadian wheat, futures prices were firm on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Values closed ⅜-½ cent higher, May at 78¼, July 79¼ and October 80½ cents.

Export sales totalled 1,750,000 bushels with all Canadian ports sharing in the business.

This support took care of selling that drifted into the pit and offset irregularity at Chicago. Liverpool closed ⅞d higher. No. 6 and Durum wheats were in demand in the cash-grains section, spreads improving fractionally. With the exception of flax, coarse grains prices were firm. Flax eased about a cent at one time under liquidation.

ANOTHER CUT IN DIRECT RELIEF GRANTS LOOMING

OTTAWA, May 5.—A vote of $26,000,000 for direct relief grants to the provinces, passed in the House of Commons last night, indicates the government has hopes of lessening unemployment costs during the year.

Sonja In Movies?

DIRE PLIGHT OF PROVINCE IS OUTLINED

ductive wealth over such a long period, it must be obvious to all that the economic structure of our province has been impaired very seriously."

He cited figures to show that since 1931 and including 1935 there had been $23,493,119.42 spent on agricultural and unemployment relief in this province. To this total must be added $10,000,000 to cover the year ended Mar. 31, 1936 and the present fiscal year. It was true that the Dominion government made a contribution, but this huge sum reflected the economic conditions which have prevailed in the province in the last few years.

SCHOOLS OF THOUGHT

"Can we survive without the application of drastic changes?" he asked. "What are the remedies? To these questions he declared that there were three schools of thought, namely, the application of Social Credit, secession of the four western provinces and preservation of national unity through a re-arrangement of Dominion, provincial and municipal responsibilities.

Dealing with Social Credit, as the first of the three schools of thought mentioned, Mr. Duggan declared that: "I dispense with the first by leaving the experimentation to those who have faith in the efficacy of the theories of Social Credit. Suffice it to say that the government has not yet disclosed any practical plan which can be tested by recognized economic principles. It should be said that the Premier and many of his supporters have a normal conception of the economic problems facing this province and are hoping to evolve some plan which will remedy the situation but in their zeal for Social Credit, all sorts of impractical suggestions have been made."

INSTANCES CITED

"For instance, the issuance of scrip to build highways; the establishing of a 'just price' in the absence of power to arrange trade agreements and the payment of Social Credit dividends without increase in taxation.

"Assuming that the government met with a fair measure of success, which is impossibility of such a program remedying the basic evils from which we are suffering. The grave danger facing the province is that such experimentation will aggravate the problem and postpone recovery. No useful purpose can be served through condemnation. A large body of people in this province have protested against things as they are. . . . Many of the government supporters have no faith in the theories of Social Credit, but they demand reforms and there must be reforms or we enter a more serious situation than that which now exists."

Mr. Duggan dismissed the secession angle as not being likely.

Mr. Duggan painted a doleful picture of the province's failure to live within its income.

ALBERTA OVER-EXPENDITURE

He cited figures to show that the combined general account and telephones deficits from 1931 and including 1935 amounted to $7,808,691. $17,870,746.82. This he said, represented that Alberta expenditure over revenue for the period mentioned.

"In addition to the annual deficit," said Mr. Duggan, "the book of government rural telephones had to be salvaged, owing to the inability of the government to provide for depreciation and replacement, resulting in a capital loss of $6,835,-154.83," he said.

PICTURE INCOMPLETE

Mr. Duggan pointed out that the provincial picture was incomplete without a knowledge of the present provincial position.

He emphasized that during the current fiscal year, Alberta would be $20,000,000 short in meeting its obligations; that financial commitments this year were $30,000,-000 in excess of anticipated revenue to meet them.

Dealing with capital requirements for the year, Mr. Duggan recalled that there was $25,000,000 in Dominion government loans; about $10,000,000 in various kinds of savings certificates; $5,700,000 in bank loans; $4,404,000 in debentures in default and maturing on November 1 next and also in University of Alberta bonds maturing on July 1, and estimated new capital requirements of $2,549,044.89.

Against this $43,000,000 there was $1,659,278 in cash and accounts, $5,580,000 on the C.P.R. and C.N.R. payment agreement for the sale of Northern Railways and due before 1939, and possibility of $6,500,000 award of the natural resources commission.

RAPS INCREASED TAXES

Mr. Duggan sharply attacked the Aberhart government for its increased taxation as announced in the budget.

"In striking contrast to Social Credit promises and the promises which led the present government to victory, we find a budget which is strikingly orthodox from beginning to end. It portrays the theory that an unbalanced budget is a greater evil than increased taxation. Of these two evils the latter has been accepted," he said.

Mr. Duggan then enumerated items which showed that through the budget $3,610,200 new taxation was being levied on the people of this province this year.

Mr. Duggan attacked the government's refunding proposals.

DOOR NOW OPEN

"We all agree interest rates must come down," he said. "For years we have been advocating creation of a loan council and refunding our debt with Dominion guarantee. The door is now open for us if we will only avail ourselves of the opportunity presented.

"To compel savings certificates holders to accept 2½ per cent or 3 per cent mortgage or stock in exchange for present holdings is a serious violation of contract.

"A reduction of capital value of at least 25 per cent will take place in all mortgages owing to do this and is a bad example for the public. Its ramifications and repercussions make most disquieting results must appprehensive of ultimate results.

IMPROVED SECURITY NEEDED

"I say the door is open to achieve the same result in an honorable way. People are ready to take lower interest rates, but they have a right to demand an improved security. Holders of Alberta securities readily would turn their holdings in exchange for a Dominion guaranteed security at around three per cent. It was the compulsory feature of the government's proposal which alarmed the Dominion government and resulted in default on April 1.

Mr. Duggan pointed out that if a provincial government treats default lightly, then it will follow out with equal disregard for commitments. If the province said it would not pay, the taxpayers would rightly say that there was no moral obligation for them to pay, and if the province refused funds on representations of provincial resources wealth, what moral right had the province to enforce payment from a citizen who has resources?

SEATED AT HEAD TABLE

Seated at the head table were Conservative candidates in both the provincial and Dominion elections.

Mrs. W. A. Fluck toasted the Dominion candidates, E. W. S. Kane the provincial candidates, and R. D. Tighe, K.C., the organizers.

Entertainment was provided by F. Richardson Lovette, Jackie Ireland and the Young Conservative Club chorus.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative candidate in the Peace River riding in the last election was a guest.

A letter was read from Senator W. A. Griesbach, who is at Ottawa and a wire from Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Dominion Conservative leader, was read.

The anthracite coal mine at Summit Hill in Pa. has been burning since 1860.

It represents a reduction as compared with the recent rates which the government intends to continue for the time being. Labor minister Rogers said, but he anticipates improved conditions later will enable reductions to be made.

At the end of March the Dominion was contributing $2,606,285 a month to the provinces or $31,275,420 a year. The $26,000,000 passed Monday would not be sufficient to meet the same monthly grants.

CAN BE INCREASED

This appropriation, which represents a further cut to the 15 per cent put into effect April 1, can be increased by a supplementary vote.

The figure, however, indicates the government's hope seasonal work will decrease.

In December, Dominion grants were increased 15 per cent for the winter months and then at the end of March, decreased 15 per cent.

MONEY TO SPARE

If calculated at the rates applying before the 15 per cent increase went into effect, the $26,000,000 would be sufficient to meet the annual bill with $5,000,000 to spare. In the fiscal year 1934-35, the Dominion's contributions to the provinces totalled $19,211,000.

There is nothing to prevent the government from passing a supplementary vote to the $26,000,000, either at this session or the next but unless this is done, there will not be enough money to continue direct relief grants at their present levels.

Official confirmation has not yet been received by Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health and in charge of relief that the Dominion government is going to slash relief payments to provinces by 15 per cent a month ever that above the 15 per cent cut put into effect on April 1.

"I do not expect it will effect us very much as I feel that the difference will be taken care of in the road construction program," he said "Also I presume that in the Fall, when the need for relief becomes greater, that the Dominion will restore this percentage if necessary," he said.

No Reduction For City Yet

Informed of the further cut of 15 per cent. in the Dominion's relief contribution to Alberta, city commissioners said Tuesday that Edmonton had received no information yet that the provincial grant to the city would be reduced as a result of the federal action.

The city at present receives $60,-000 a month from the province, this contribution being in effect since December 1, 1935, for a four-month period, according to the agreement between the three governments. The Dominion slashed its contribution to the province by 15 per cent. on April 1, the second reduction announced Tuesday bringing the total cut to 30 per cent. But the city is still receiving its $60,000.

OPEN SEASON FOR NIMRODS HERE MAY 16

(the gentle whish of casting lines travelling through the air, the lapping of waters on the sides of canoes, the delectable aroma of frying trout and the delicious fragrance of a cool beaker of beer) are proving too much for local nimrods.

Fishing tackle merchants report an undue pother for this time of year. Bankers, lawyers, doctors, bricklayers, beer waiters and even a few newspapermen have been gazing into the showcases with fanatical intentness only visible on the pans of true Waltonians.

DUCK, FATHER!

At least 20 windows within the city limits have been broken by hardy pioneers who insist on testing their trout rods before the snow is off the ground.

In order to help these expectant fishermen while away the lonely hours until May 16, the Bulletin is printing an official communique on the state of piscatory delicacies in Alberta lakes, rivers and streams.

Red Deer: Sylvan lake, 18 miles west of Red Deer, and Pine lake, 25 miles from Red Deer, furnish good pike fishing, and the latter lake is also well stocked with perch.

Lacombe: Pike fishing may be had in Gull lake, 11 miles from Lacombe, and in Buffalo lake, 30 miles east from Lacombe and two miles from Mirror.

Wetaskiwin: Pike, pickerel and perch are to be had in Pigeon lake, thirty miles from Wetaskiwin and twenty-five miles from Millet.

RIGHT AT HOME

Edmonton: Fair sport for pike, pickerel, perch and goldeye may be had in a number of waters within a sixty-mile radius of the city, including Wabamun lake, Isle lake, Lac Ste. Anne, Lac la Nonne, Lake Nakamun and Chip lake.

North and east of Edmonton: In this locality there are a large number of good fishing lakes, the most important of which are Cold lake, Frog lake, Baptiste lake, Lake St. Vincent, Floating Stone lake, Fork lake, Pinehurst lake, Beaver Lake, Lac la Biche, Buck lake, Skeleton lake and Amis lake. Most of these waters contain pike, pickerel and perch, while Cold lake is famous for its excellent lake trout, which grows to an exceptionally large size and is of a delicious flavor. Thousands of anglers visit Cold lake each year.

West of Edmonton: Dolly Varden and rainbow trout and grayling may be had in the Edson river, Trout creek, McLeod river, Muskeg river, Obed and Bear lakes. Moose creek, Sundance creek, and Embarass creek, which are from one to thirty miles from the town of Edson.

YOO HOO, DOLLY!

Good sport for Dolly Varden trout, rainbow trout and lake trout may be had in numerous waters which are conveniently reached from Brule station. The more popular waters with anglers include Brule lake, Fish lake and creek, Solomon valley waters, and the Hay river and tributaries.

The towns of Edson and Obed give access to the tributaries of the Athabasca and McLeod rivers which afford popular canoe routes to Whitecourt, Smith or Athabasca. These waters furnish good sport for rainbow trout and grayling.

Jasper National Park: Many of the lakes and streams of Jasper Park contain game fish, and the restocking operations carried out by the National Parks Service during recent years has resulted in a steady improvement in the catch. Among the indigenous species are rainbow trout, cutthroat trout, Dolly Varden trout and salmon trout, while Loch Leven trout, land-locked salmon and eastern brook trout have been introduced. Best fishing waters within easy access of the town of Jasper are lake Annette and Edith north of Jasper Park Lodge. Pyramid lake at the foot of mount Pyramid, and a group of small lakes—Caledonia, Marjorie, Hibernia and Dorothy—located on the benches of the Athabasca river west of the town of Jasper. The Wabasso lake on Jeffrey Prairie, eight miles from Jasper, are noted for rainbow trout.

North of Edmonton: Good pike and pickerel fishing can be had in practically all the lakes in the Edmonton district and north. The Lac la Biche district has numerous small lakes which produce excellent perch, pickerel and pike. In some lakes these fish are very large.

HEAVENS ROAR HERE TUESDAY

Edmonton got its first honest-to-goodness spring rain Tuesday and the grass and trees were turning green so quickly you could almost see the change.

Rain started to patter shortly after 10 p.m. Monday, and by 9 a.m. Tuesday 38 inches had fallen.

The forecast is "mild and unsettled," which gives promise of continued showers.

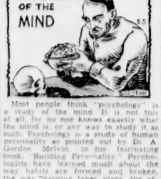

Monday afternoon was very summery with a high of 84 being rung up at 2 p.m., which fell away to 72 at 3 p.m., 71 at 4 p.m., and then degree by degree and hour by hour, down to 48 at 9 a.m. on Tuesday.

It was still just 48 above at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, and a total of one-half inch of rain had fallen. The barometer remained steady and there was no promise of a break.

The heat of Monday afternoon gave a few citizens sunstroke. These same sun-struck burghers would have it known that they saw lightning and heard thunder early Tuesday morning, but the weather office has no record of such heavenly carryings-on.

The Debunker

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

Most people think "psychology" is a study of the mind. It is not this at all. For no one knows exactly what the mind is, or any way to study it as such. Psychology is a study of human personality as pointed out by Dr. A. Gordon Melvin, in his fascinating book, "Building Personality." Psychologists have learned much about the way habits are formed and broken, the way learning takes place, the effect of the instinctive urges upon conduct and the relative effects of environment and heredity in the production of any individual. This is not a study of the mind.
